Open Dolan Trial for Contempt

Trial of Edmund L. Dolan, former city treasurer, on contempt of court charges, the result of alleged jury tampering, got under way in Suffolk court today after a last-minute effort to quash the charges failed.

On trial with Dolan are former Representative Robert Dinsmore of East Boston, J. Walter Quinn, and Harold Simpson.

Just before taking of testimony began, it was revealed, through a question by counsel, that Judge Frederick W. Fosdick, presiding justice, had taken part in the investigation.

Band of 'Spongers' Blocked at Track

Copyright, 1938, by Boston Evening American

Two squads of G-men, the Boston Evening American learned today, have been in Boston for 10 days, one on a hunt for race track spongers and horse dopers, the other after a group of skilled counterfeiters.

In an attempt to block possible operations of the band attempting to fix races, it was also learned, officials at Suffolk Downs, on their own initiative, have placed special guards in the horse stables.

Under arrest in Massachusetts for another crime is a race track tout who has followed the meetings for years and who, during the past winter, was in California, Florida, Maryland and New York.

The Boston Evening American learned that he has given to the G-men information that a group of horse spongers are in Boston, using a car with Iowa number plates, and a group of horse dopers are here with a car carrying Florida plates.

The group of narcotics horse-fixers are working it is understood, with a nationally-known crooked bookmaker and are dealing only for themselves.

Their method is to wait for a race with a small field of horses, the G-men have learned, and they have been highly successful at

Shoutin's Over! Pennsy Votes

By GEORGE R. HOLMES

PITTSBURGH, May 17—Pennsylvania's roistering, name-calling primary campaign reached the show-down stage at the polls today with all the embittered factions claiming victory and none quite certain which way the dice may fall.

Both parties nominate candidates for Senator, Governor, Congress and lesser offices, and there has been so much heat and bitterness, so much trading and conniving that the leaders themselves are somewhat in the dark, however, vociferous their claims.

National Chairman Jim Farley's 11th-hour intervention in the Democratic situation—ostensibly to restore some semblance of party harmony against November—gave a final dramatic flip to the windup of the campaign. But it restored no harmony in the snarling Democratic factions.

Vizualizing defeat in November unless the Democrats patch up their quarrels, Farley proposed that Governor George H. Earle be nominated for the Senate and that Lieutenant-Governor Tom Kennedy, the CIO candidate, be nominated for governor.

But it fell on deaf ears so far as Earle and the state organization were concerned. Earle has the backing of the committee and the American Federation of Labor. Kennedy is supported by

GOV. GEORGE E. EARLE
Rebuffs Farley

Senator Joe Guffey, until now the undisputed leader of Keystone Democracy, and of John L. Lewis and his CIO.

The effect of Farley's proposal would be to cast into darkness Charles A. Jones, Pittsburgh lawyer, who is running for governor on the Earle-organization slate, and Mayor S. Davis Wilson of Philadelphia, who seeks the senatorial nomination on the Guffey-Kennedy-Lewis-CIO slate.

contest between those old opponents in Pennsylvania Republican politics—Gifford Pinchot and the "Old Guard" leadership in Philadelphia.

PINCHOT IN RACE

Pinchot, at 72, is seeking his third term as governor, opposed by Judge Arthur H. James, candi-

THOMAS KENNEDY
Backed by Lewis

The organization, which is to say Earle and the state committee, "resented" Farley's interference. Never, said Governor Earle, would he desert his allies. The Governor could hardly say otherwise, as he burned his bridges behind him days ago when he publicly excoriated John L. Lewis, although Lewis and his United Mine Workers supported him four years ago.

The noisy clamor and name-calling of the Democratic squabble almost eclipsed the Republican date of the old line party leaders.

CHARLES A. JONES
Still in Fight

Pinchot has an informal alliance with Senator James (Puddler Jim) Davis, who is seeking renomination, and who is supported by G. Mason Owlett, Republican National Committeeman, and like James, the candidate of the Grundys, the Pews and the other old-liners.

There can be no question but that the national Democratic leadership is perturbed, and deeply so, over the prospect of losing Pennsylvania in November due to the Democratic family quarrel.

The national Democratic leadership is frankly fearful that should Kennedy be defeated for the gubernatorial nomination and Pinchot get the Republican nomination—as seems likely—then John L. Lewis and his CIO cohorts may elect to go along with Pinchot in November. Pinchot and Lewis have been allies in bygone days in Pennsylvania politics, and might well be again.

SEE EARLE VICTORY

Political opinion was sharply divided today as to the effect that Farley's last-minute intervention will have; also as to the motives back of it. Had Farley made his statement a week ago, so that it could have percolated thoroughly throughout the 67 counties, there is general agreement that it would have had a very considerable effect.

S. DAVIS WILSON
Guffey's Choice

The prevailing opinion is that if Farley really desired to help Kennedy, then his timing was wrong. There were some suspicious souls today who felt that Farley was simply making the grand gesture to John L. Lewis, with an eye to 1940.

The betting here is that Jones will win over Kennedy. The consensus was that Earle would win rather easily over Mayor Wilson, who has no particular strength outside Philadelphia, and that either Jones or Kennedy could take the third candidate, ex-Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti, who was summarily ousted by Governor Earle, after he had made grave charges of graft and corruption in high places in the Earle administration.

PINCHOT STRONG

The race between Pinchot and James for the Republican nomination for governor is considered by Pennsylvania experts to be relatively close.

The Philadelphia organization is expected to turn in a whopping vote for the judge, but Pinchot's strength lies in the rural and industrial regions.

Numerically, from the registration lists, there is little to choose between the two parties. The registration in both parties is slightly in excess of 2,000,000.

Stage 'Sit' For Relief

CLEVELAND, May 17 (AP) Relief clients held the City Council chamber today in a sit-down protest which, their spokesmen said, would continue "until regular relief orders are restored."

Their occupancy of the chamber came in the wake of a tumultuous council session attended last night by approximately 1000 of the city's 87,000 direct relief dependents.

The 150 sit-downers wired Governor Martin L. Davey asserting the Ohio relief situation was a "national disgrace."

POLICE ON GUARD

Municipal Safety Director Eliot Ness ordered police posted in the chamber, instructing them not to molest the demonstrators.

The council, in the latest of a series of emergency measures, transferred $80,000 from the general city fund as a stop-gap appropriation to meet relief costs until next Monday.

A special session of the Legislature, at Columbus, has named an investigating committee to ascertain what money is needed to support Ohio's needy for the balance of the year.

CHICAGO, May 17 (AP)—Approximately 34,000 Chicago families took up a notch in their belts today while state and city officials worked to sten the growing relief crisis.

The Illinois emergency relief commission ordered relief stations closed tomorrow for lack of funds.

Governor Horner planned a special session of the Legislature to consider how to bridge the gap between the $1,900,000 received monthly from the state sales tax by the city for the relief of 93,000 families and the $3,600,000 a month needed.

Plan 'World Ills' Parley

By WILLIAM HILLMAN

(Copyright, 1938, by International News Service)

LONDON, May 17—Summoning of a world economic conference to deal with raw materials, tariffs, monetary questions and other economic problems of Europe and America, has been decided upon by Britain and the United States, it was learned today.

Immediately after the signing of an Anglo-American trade agreement which is expected in July, Secretary of State Cordell Hull will take the initiative in summoning the conference supported by Britain.

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, after a long interchange of communications with President Roosevelt, agreed to the world economic conference.

International News Service can reveal for the first time that a major cause of the recent dispute between Chamberlain and his former foreign secretary, Anthony Eden, in addition to the Anglo-Italian negotiations, was Eden's support of the Roosevelt proposal.

Chamberlain preferred to await solution of principal European political problems before planning the world conference for "economic disarmament."

The British prime minister is now compromising and is vigorously backing up the far-reaching conference realizing that economic causes may be underlying political problems.

International News Service can state on the highest authority that Chamberlain is even considering the possibility of going to Washington to confer with Roosevelt, if necessary, so anxious is he to win over the public opinion of the United States.

The principal problems in addition to the monetary and financial will be questions of credit for trade markets, export trade, tariffs, quotas and raw materials.

Thus Roosevelt and Hull, while disclaiming political entanglements with Europe, are taking the initiative to solve Europe's world troubles through economic tie-ups.

Death Rides Skies? 9 on Plane Vanish

BURBANK, Cal., May 17 (INS)—Forced to fly precariously low because of fog, two radio-equipped National Guard planes swept over a wide area in this vicinity today in a search for a missing transport plane with nine persons, including four women and two children, aboard.

The plane has been unreported since it left here at 1:41 p. m. yesterday.

Two other planes, which took off earlier, returned to the field because they were improperly equipped for observation.

The searching planes were centering their search in the vicinity of Mt. Gleason, north of Pasadena.

Hundreds Scour Hills, Canyon

Sixteen pilots were standing by waiting to take off when the fog lifts.

At the same time, hundreds of men, including 300 enrollees of a CCC camp located near Mint canyon, where the plane was last seen shortly after it took off at 1:41 p. m. yesterday, began combing the hills and canyons in search of the plane.

The plane, a new $80,000 Lockheed, was being ferried to St. Paul, Minn., and was bound for Las Vegas, Nev., a trip which normally requires a little over two hours.

Those aboard the plane were, except for the two children, officials of either the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation, builders of the plane, or the Northwest Air Lines Company of St. Paul, to which the plane was being delivered.

2 Small Children Aboard

The Northwest Air Lines officials were Fred Whittemore, of St. Paul, vice-president in charge of operations; Henry Salisbury, chief inspector at the Lockheed plant, and Miss Evelyn Dingle, 25, a clerk in the St. Paul office.

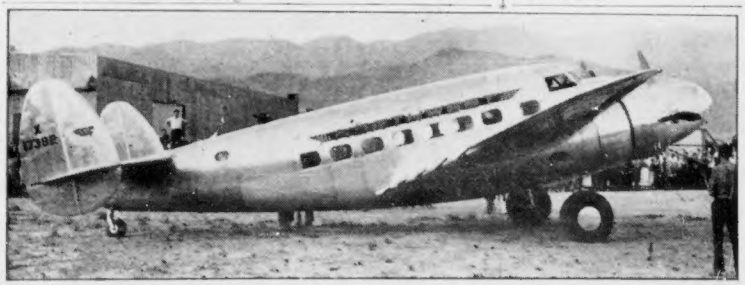
Salisbury, whose wife, the former Betty Carle, and two children, Judith, three, and Richard, two, were with him, had been stationed at the plant for some time, supervising final construction details on the new plane.

The Lockheed representatives aboard the plane were Sidney Willey, who was to have piloted the ship from Burbank to Las Vegas, from where Whittemore would take the ship on into St. Paul; Miss Totty, secretary of an official of the Lockheed Company, and Mrs. Carl B. Squier, wife of Captain Squier, vice-president of the company, believed to be either in St. Paul or Chicago.

The search was centering on Mint Canyon on the basis of reports from L. D. Carlson, Western Air Express pilot, who said, on landing from a regularly scheduled trip, that he had communicated with the pilot of the missing plane soon after taking off from Burbank.

Carlson said he took off a few minutes after the new Lockheed and contacted it as it flew towards the Mint Canyon area.

He said he was flying at 6500 feet, "on top" of a blanket of fog and mist and did not see the missing plane at any time during the flight.



9 PASSENGERS MISSING—Type of the huge $80,000 Lockheed transport plane that today was missing with nine passengers on a fog-shrouded peak of the Sierra Madre range near Los Angeles. The plane was believed to have been wrecked while taking a short cut to St. Paul.

Horse's Tail Costs $100 Fine

NEWBURYPORT, May 17—Charged with mutilating a $10,000 show horse to make his tail "stand up," Thomas Fay, 52, manager of the Oldtown Hill Farms, owned by Mrs. Florence Dibble, millionaire Boston socialite, was fined $100 here today in district court.

Mrs. Dibble, known throughout the country for the string of famous 34 Dibble horses, was not in the courtroom. Several weeks ago she was acquitted of the same charge.

Fay appealed and was ordered to furnish $300 bond.

Fred T. Vickers, Essex county prosecuting officer for the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, told the court he accompanied Police Chief Albert A. Stevens of Newburyport to the stables. He said Fay slashed tendons in the animal's back to make its tail stand erect.

Hotel Fire Toll Reaches 28

ATLANTA, May 17 (AP)—Bodies of two men were dug today from the fire-blackened ruins of the Terminal Hotel, bringing the number of victims found to 28.

Firemen expressed fear several others were buried in the debris left by the flames which swept the 5-story hotel yesterday.

The potential death list was reduced with discovery that 14 men believed to have perished had escaped by sliding down a rope dangling from a painter's scaffold.

Dictatorship Feared by Fish

ALBANY, N. Y., May 17 (INS)—Representative Hamilton Fish, Jr., New York Republican, today charged that President Roosevelt has an "obsession for power."

Commenting on reports that the President may seek congressional approval of a new reorganization bill before adjournment, Fish said:

"If a new reorganization bill is adopted, Congres might just as well be abolished, and the American system, based on three separate and independent branches of government, abolished for some foreign form of dictatorial government."

Fish said the original reorganization bill was defeated because the people opposed granting more power to President Roosevelt to set up a "super-government."

Girl Begged Dope for Pal, Court Is Told

One of the federal narcotic bureau's girl "lures" begged him to assist her in getting dope for a "dying friend," Irving Yerkes of Boston testified today, in his own defense, in United States District Court.

Yerkes is one of seven persons on trial for alleged conspiracy to violate federal anti-narcotic statutes.

SEVEN PLEAD GUILTY

Seven other defendants have entered guilty pleas, and one defendant has been cleared by a directed verdict of not guilty.

Yerkes told judge and jury today that the woman who asked him to get her dope was Jane Spencer, self-admitted informer for narcotic agents.

According to her testimony, already given in the present trial, Yerkes introduced her and Rose Nolan, another informer, to Michael McMahon, alleged Boston employe of a $2,000,000 New York-Boston dope ring.

Yerges denied today ever having handled dope, in any form, and also denied having arranged for Miss Spencer to obtain dope.

Held as Parents Of Deserted Baby

NEWPORT, R. I., May 17 — State police announced today they had found the parents of a 10-day-old baby boy abandoned at a Tiverton farm during Saturday night's storm.

Lieut. Owen Nolan said he had a confession from a New Bedford man he was the father of the child, born May 16 at a private hospital in Acushnet, Mass. Father and mother, Nolan said, were being held for arraignment in the Newport District Court on a charge of abandonment, then would be turned over to Massachusetts police on a morals charge.

Lost Society Flier Hunt Draws Blank

NEW YORK, May 17 (INS)—Today came for pretty Elizabeth Halsey Whitfield as every day has come for a month past—with no word for or of her aviator husband who took off from Roosevelt field in his plane just one month ago and has not been seen or heard from since.

MRS. E. H. WHITFIELD
Mystery Baffles Her

And there was no more explanation today of how Andrew Carnegie Whitfield, nephew of the late financier, and his plane disappeared than there was on that April day when he left the field for "a short flight to visit some friends."

Admitted is a domestic quarrel, an after-the-honeymoon tiff of no great proportions and Mrs. Whitfield is unwilling to believe that in itself was enough to send her husband away.

The most frequently offered theory is that for both men and plane to disappear, there must have been an air accident which ended with the plummeting of the plane into Long Island sound. But no one witnessed such an accident and there has been no trace of wreckage.

There was gas in the plane only sufficient for a flight of a few hours and there is no report of it having been refuelled.

Joint Control Of Wage-Hours Asked by Dies

WASHINGTON, May 17 (INS)—A drive to convert the Norton wage-hour bill into a joint federal-state plan for regulation of minimum wages and maximum hours was opened today by Representative Dies (D.) of Texas.

Declaring the Democratic national platform calls for this method, Dies made public a series of amendments which will be offered when the House begins consideration of the issue Monday.

He proposed to give state labor authorities power to grant exemptions from the minimum wage and maximum hours requirements, but would prohibit any wage less than 25 cents an hour or hours longer than 44 per week.

The Secretary of Labor would be given power to modify or reverse the state labor authority, but only if the findings were not sustained by facts. The employer would have the right to appeal to the courts.

HAVANA, May 17 (INS)—Captain Augustin Parla, Cuban aviator, and Jesus Gonzales Scarpeta, Havana newspaper writer, engaged in a duel with pistols this morning on a farm 15 miles from Havana.

Each fired two shots at 30 paces with .44-caliber dueling pistols, but neither was wounded, and the seconds called a halt after Scarpeta's second shot failed. Parla cooly offered Scarpeta another shot, but the seconds would not permit it.

Parla, who made the first airplane flight from the United States to Cuba in 1913, is known as the "Cuban Lindbergh." He charged that Scarpeta wrote an article about him which was "offensive, untrue and insulting." The duel was later arranged.

Working Wives' Appeal Served In Somerville

Characterizing Mayor John M. Lynch's dismissal of married women from the Somerville city employ as "mere pretense," Wendell P. Murray, counsel for seven of the wives served notice today that his clients appeal from the order.

Murray named his clients as Leah M. Estee, S. Frances Nugent, and Emeline W. Edkins, all of the water department; Henrietta [illegible]nan, soldiers' relief; Frances Sharpe Lewis and Helen E. Linegar, welfare department; and Marion L. Gillard, assessors.

"We think the ordinance is wholly invalid as being in conflict with the state statute," said Attorney Murray in serving the appeal notice on City Solicitor Robert J. Muldoon.

"The abolition of the office is a mere pretense. The work is necessary and will have to be performed."

In all, eight wives have appealed the dismissals, Mary Welch of Medford street, dental assistant in the welfare clinic, having been the first.

Muldoon stated that the deadline on appeals was 5 p. m. today. A hearing will be held within two weeks.

Army Air Corps In Victory Flight

The army air corps took off at dawn today for a thundering air march of victory over New England and New York, following expulsion of a mythical enemy from American shores.

Although the week-long series of air battles were against only imaginary enemy fliers, the Army is convinced it effectively demonstrated its aerial superiority.

New Yorkers were promised the best view in today's air parade of victory, although many of Uncle Sam's mighty bombers will be seen in parts of Massachusetts.

FIRST "RAID"

The armada of Douglas bombers stationed at Westfield took off for a formation flight over Springfield. Orders for the victory concentration call for a display of 144 giant fighting ships in one of the greatest displays of aerial might this nation has ever seen.

The war game came to a spectacular end early today at Farmingdale, L. I., after the army staged its first air drill raid in which the civil populace was involved.

Shrieking sirens heralded the raid, and in an instant all lights were shut off. The 36th pursuit squadron then took off to intercept a flight of "enemy" bombers. Also assisting in driving off the raiders was the 62d Coast Artillery, which peppered the invaders with blank ammunition from anti-aircraft guns.

Charity Wins Al Smith High Papal Honor

NEW YORK, May 17 (INS)—Former Governor Alfred E. Smith, John S. Burke and John Thomas Smith today stood invested as privy chamberlains of the Cape and Sword in the Household of Pope Pius XI.

Patrick Cardinal Hayes, acting for the pontiff before a distinguished gathering of church dignitaries and prominent laymen in the ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, bestowed the honors on the recipients "for their distinguished works for charity in the arch-diocese of New York."

The following message from G. Battista Monti, under-secretary at the Vatican, was read:

"His Holiness has benignly deigned to included among his supernumerary private chamberlains of the Sword and Cape, Mr. Alfred E. Smith of the archdiocese of New York. With congratulations to Hr. Smith for his edifying wisdom and conduct."

There were identical illusions to Burke and John T. Smith.

It was a most impressive ceremony when his eminence bestowed upon each the papal brief and badge of the chamberlains.

Revere Officers Face Dever Quiz

Seven Revere patrolmen were called by Attorney General Paul A. Dever today for questioning in connection with Revere rackets and graft, uncovered following the slaying of Louis Gaeta last Fall.

The men were to be questioned separately in seeking new evidence to be presented before a special grand jury which convenes next Tuesday.

At the same time, it was learned that investigators have learned of two strong boxes at a Boston bank which were visited regularly by a woman, allegedly in the employ of a high Revere official.

It was declared that the boxes were held in the name of the woman and that regular deposits and withdrawals were made from July, 1937, through November of that year. They stopped allegedly with the death of Gaeta and the probe of Revere rackets that followed.

Pay for Parentage Proposed

Psychologist Asks Per-Child Rates

SALT LAKE CITY, May 17 (AP)—A famed California psychologist recommended to the nation's parents and teachers today payment for parentage — at so much per child.

"Society," said Dr. Paul Popenoe of Los Angeles, director of the Institute of Family Relations, "must be prepared to equalize the burden of parenthood by a proportional family wage which will increase the salary of the white collar worker — whether man or woman—with the birth of each child.

"The present erroneous concept of 'equal pay for equal work,' which merely means that a high school principal with a wife and four children is expected to live on the same salary that would be paid a bachelor, has proved to be too destructive of family life to be continued," he asserted in a prepared address.

"It puts a high premium on sterility and punishes people for having children.

"The family wage is economically sound, socially just and eugenically necessary."

Dr. Popenoe expounded his theory of "the changing family in a changing world" to more than 1200 delegates from every state to the National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Dr. Popenoe, urging that children be educated for parenthood and be trained to co-operate with their parents in the work of the world, added:

"That means the necessity for more mature, well-integrated, happily-married men and women in the teaching force, especially at the high school level.

Paints 'Destruction Of Family Life'

"It would be desirable from many points of view to let girls marry at the normal biological age instead of becoming teachers. Let them have their children while they are still young, and then, if they want to make an additional social contribution, let them do so after their children are in school."

'Lower Church Costs'---Babson

Roger Babson, financial statistician, called today for curtailment of the power of national headquarters of the Congregational Church of the United States.

He spoke at the First Unitarian Church, Dedham, across the street from Allyn Congregational Church, where the 129th annual meeting is in session.

Himself a high ranking officer of the National Congregational Conference, Babson took the floor at the Allyn Church today and invited delegates who wished to hear his speech to follow him to the nearby Unitarian Church.

DELEGATES FOLLOW

A majority of the 500 delegates accompanied him.

Urging cutting costs and curbing authority of the Congregational church's New York executive headquarters, Babson made three recommendations:

First, that a "ceiling" be put on salaries of headquarters secretaries, keeping their pay down to the average of that given Congregational pastors.

WANTS "NEW BLOOD"

Second, that term of office of headquarters secretaries be limited to a maximum of five years, after which time they be "fired" and "replaced by new blood."

Third that the general executive committee of the National Congregational Conference be strengthened by addition of "men and women who are actually accomplishing something in furthering the real aims of the church."

Police Bullet Victim Dying

Hope faded today for Robert I. Hammond, 17, Stoneham high school sophomore, who, police say, stole automobiles for a thrill and pulled a gun to scare a policeman.

At Winchester Hospital doctors and nurses after working on the youth all night declared today his condition was critical.

An investigation of his shooting by Patrolman John J. Murray in Winchester will be launched today.

Both Officer Murray and the boy will be questioned by Chief William E. Rogers, who will submit his report to the office of District Attorney Warren L. Bishop.

Witnesses to the shooting have informed Chief Rogers that only fate saved the officer from possible death.

They corroborated the assertions of the policeman that he did not fire until after the youth had pulled the trigger of his gun, which jammed.

893 Inmates Jam State Prison

The population at the State Prison in Charlestown today reached 893, the largest in a year. Of that number, 92 are "lifers."

'Yankee Plan' For Prosperity

Censuring the New Deal for use of "gold brick" publicity methods, Walter D. Fuller, president of the Curtis Publishing Company, today told Boston Chamber of Commerce members that honest Yankee salesmanship and truthful advertising offer best hope for return of American prosperity.

Fuller quoted the late Frank I. Cobb as saying, "When the government lies, it does not lie sneakingly or furtively, but proudly and ostentatiously."

"Fallacies which have been sold as facts are about to be exposed in their ugly nakedness," said Fuller.

"It is historically true that the most skillful of charlatans has never succeeded permanently in selling a gold brick and it is not likely that a melodious voice and a fireside manner can violate the rules of the ages."

CITES RECOVERY FAILURE

Government efforts to "push" the United States into prosperity have been a costly failure, piling up $23,000,000,000 of increased national debt, Fuller said.

"The thing which has not been tried," he asserted, "and the one thing which has been needed throughout this whole period is return to fundamental American salesmanship as a means of stimulating the desires, the wants and needs of our 130,000,000 population and of the 2,000,000,000 people elsewhere in the world.

"Yankee salesmanship made American methods of mass production possible. Yankee ingenuity developed manufacturing and invention.

HARD ROAD AHEAD

"Yankee salesmanship created modern advertising, lately distorted and misused as a vehicle for half-truth government propaganda.

"The only way we are going to get out of this depression is to trade and work our way out.

"It is quite likely we may have to take less before we can have more. There is no soft way out and it needs all the ingenuity and co-operation of all of us to find even the difficult way."

Tobin Warns His Aides Again

Mayor Tobin called city department heard together today for renewed warnings on economy and courtesy.

They must stay within their budgets, he told them, and, moreover, he wants a "sizable surplus" at the end of the year.

The mayor reiterated his warnings against "joy riding" in city-owned automobiles, and against purchases of any except actually needed supplies.

He announced that he will give a first prize of $25, second prize of $10 and two third prizes of $5 each to the city employes who write the best 100-word letters describing the manner in which the individual employe actually saved money for the city.

The mayor also directed department heads to draw up projects for white-collar workers and have them ready in two weks. Indications are there will be an increase in WPA allotments, the mayor said.

Georgian Fights For Equal Pay On Relief Jobs

By ARTHUR HACHTEN

WASHINGTON, May 17 (INS)—Heralding a bitter fight in the Senate, Senator Russell (D.) of Georgia today disclosed he would offer an amendment to require the same wage rates on government relief projects in the South as in the North, if Congress passes the wage-hour bill with uniform national standards.

If Congress passes a wage-hour bill with differentials in favor of Dixie, the Russell amendment will provide that the same percentages be applied in the South upon WPA and other federal projects.

Russell said he would offer his proposition as an amendment to the $3,179,435,000 spend-lend recovery bill, upon which a Senate appropriations sub-committee today resumed hearings behind closed doors.

WPA Administrator Harry L. Hopkins was called to testify upon the measure.

The Georgian's proposed amendment was said to have general support of Dixie's contingent in the Senate.

$700, Ring Court—Finis

Little wonder that Sergeant Harvey Yates and Special Officer James Hanley were a bit dazed as they walked out of municipal court today.

On a warrant sworn out by Miss Alice Bolan, New York heiress, they had arrested Raymond E. Kirkwood, 29, Back Bay waiter, on a charge of larceny of $700 and a diamond ring.

She had charged that she gave Kirkwood the money and ring to arrange for their marriage in New York; that he gave her the "slip," that they reconciled; that she financed a $40,000 night club for him in Worcester and that he shook her once more.

In court, however, she went to the bench and told Judge Jennie Loitman Barron that Kirkwood had returned the money and ring to her in New York.

The case was dismissed—and Kirkwood and the heiress left the court arm in arm.

Cakes Flown To Governors

Ice Cream Week in Massachusetts was officially recognized here today when Postmaster Peter F. Tague went to East Boston airport to accept a lucious "Pine Tree" ice cream cake from Governor Barrows, of Maine, to Governor Hurley.

The cake was sponsored by the National Association of Ice Cream Manufacturers and is one of 48 sent to governors of each state. Accepting the cake Governor Hurley said:

"Ice Cream Week in Massachusetts brings to the public eye an industry distributing an annual product valued at $15,000,000 and employing more than 1000 people."

Thereupon the Governor sent a cake to Governor Wilbur Cross of Connecticut.

3 Doomed Killers Saw Chains, Escape

COLUMBIA, S. C., May 17 (INS)—Using hacksaws and keys fashioned from spoons, three of six convicts under death sentence for the murder of a State prison captain today escaped from the Richland County jail.

The men sawed through four heavy chains, picked four locks, and lowered themselves to the ground with a rope fashioned from blankets.

The fugitives are Clayton Crans, 28, of Rochester, N. Y.; Hobart Moorman, 41, of Detroit, Mich, and George Wingard, 22, of Columbia, S. C.

They had been placed in separate cells. Each cell had been locked, and as an added precaution another lock and chain had been added to each door.

Also, the door of the hallway into which the jail cells opened had been locked and another chain and lock added to it.

Harvard Honor For Kennedy

Will Receive Degree in June

When he comes here June 25 to see his son graduate, Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy will receive an honorary doctor's degree from Harvard, it was revealed in Cambridge today.

Plans of Harvard officials to honor the Ambassador to Great Britain, who worked his way through the university and was graduated in 1912, were disclosed soon after Kennedy's announcement that he would attend the graduation of Joseph P. Kennedy, Jr.

Since the days when he led in Harvard undergraduate activities and won his "H" in baseball, "Joe" Kennedy has taken a prominent part in work of the university. Several times he has made addresses at the Harvard Business School.

His success in private banking and motion picture business and his prominence in public service as chairman of the SEC and maritime boards and now as Ambassador to Great Britain rank Kennedy among Harvard's foremost alumni.

During his American trip in June, Kennedy will visit President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull.

Newton Street Holdup Nets $80

Confronted by a lone armed bandit today near Newton Corners, Newton, James E. Fahey, insurance collector of Washington street, Brighton, was robbed of $80.

Fahey was on his way to work at the Newton offices of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company and was walking through Peabody street, only a block from the Washington street offices.

He told police the bandit approached him and suddenly drew a revolver, ordering Fahey to turn over his money. After the robbery the bandit continued on his way. Fahey said he saw no car.

The insurance man described the holdup man as from 25 to 28 years old, five feet 10 inches tall and wearing a gray hat, gray topcoat and tan shirt.

Held in Theft Of $550 Stock

Now a certificate for 22 shares of a certain chain store's stock, at $25 a share, is worth $550—which is simple arithmetic—but when you can't sell it, that's something else to figure.

Burt A. Thompson was hungry and he also was pretty seedy today, police said, when arrested in a South End rooming house, charged with larceny of the stock certificate, owned by his mother, Mrs. Ida M. Thompson of Milo, Me.

According to police, Thompson admitted he had been negotiating vainly for sale of the stock certificate, which police said they found in his possession.

Officials at Milo were notified of the arrest of Thompson, who vanished from home May 7.

Resume Hearing In Rea Will Case

Trial of the suit in which Lawrence Mitchell of Grove street, West Medford, seeks to break the will of his late millionaire cousin, Charles S. Rea of Salem, continued in Salem court today after Mathilda Jernberg, 67-year-old maid he would "always be a father" to him.

Rea, 99 at his death, left the bulk of his $1,000,000 estate to James Young, Jr., of Salem, who succeeded Rea as president of the Salem Savings Bank. Mitchell was left $20,000.

Missing Harlan Defendant Faces Court

LONDON, Ky., May 17 (AP)—Hugh Taylor, a former Harlan county deputy who told the Senate civil liberties committee last year he was shot and left for dead by two other deputies, was brought into court today for trial with the 66 coal operators, peace officers and corporations charged with terrorizing the Harlan coal fields.

Taylor failed to answer to the roll-call of defendants yesterday and after ruling on technical motions Federal District Judge H. Church Ford started selecting a jury.

Government agents meanwhile hunted the 30-year-old missing deputy. He was found near St. Charles, Va. at the home of his wife's relatives and returned here last night.

The coal fields terrorization charge against the 66 defendants, whose trial is expected to show whether the Wagner act can be bolstered by civil rights statutes of reconstruction days, is not the only one against Taylor.

He was free under bond pending a new trial after having been sentenced to 18 years for a slaying, and also has been charged with leaving Kentucky while on bond in that case.

He formally pleaded innocent today to the federal charge and waived objection to veniremen being questioned and eight tentatively seated in his absence yesterday.

Rejects Plea To Quash Knox Death Charge

A motion to quash the murder indictment against former State Trooper George T. Knox in connection with the death last May of Mrs. Helen D. Dale, was refused today by Judge Frederick W. Fosdick.

Judge Fosdick said the grand jury had used "proper means and methods" in handing down the indictment. The indictment was challenged by Knox's counsel, James J. McGrail.

Philip Allyn of Arlington, wealthy former book publisher, was due to be requestioned at the district attorney's office in the hope he may throw some light on solution of the fatal shooting of Mrs. Dale.

Allyn said he had visited friends who occupied an apartment in the Commonwealth avenue house where Knox lived and where Mrs. Dale met her death.

A key witness in the death probe, Mrs. Edith Belcher of Allston, was released from custody when Judge Fosdick reduced her bail from $25,000 to $2500. She had been held in Charles street jail as a material witness.

Quiz Girls on Hurley Fund

Contributions to Governor Hurley's campaign fund were made the subject of testimony before the joint legislative committee investigating political gift jobs in the Unemployment Compensation Commission today.

Typical witness was Miss Dorothy F. Mullin, former social secretary to Mrs. Mary Curley Donnelly, daughter of former Governor Curley.

Miss Mullen, now head clerk in the Unemployment Compensation Commission office at a salary of $2280 a year, is the daughter of Attorney Francis R. Mullin who, it was brought out, contributed $100 to the Hurley campaign fund in 1936.

TOOK EXAM

"Did your father's contribution have anything to do with your getting your job?" Attorney Warren Patten, counsel for the legislative committee, asked.

"I don't imagine so," Miss Mullin replied, smiling.

She said she knew nothing at all about the contribution, did not know that her father had made it, did not know whether he made a contribution or not.

She is under civil service, she stated under further questioning. She admitted she took a non-competitive examination in 1936, while Governor Curley still was in office.

QUIZ BOSTON GIRL

Helen Marie Foley, Medfield street, Boston, an examiner of claims for the Unemployment Compensation Commission at $1560 a year, was questioned concerning Felix Carr and Frederick J. Muldoon, whose names appear on her civil service application as character references.

Carr, Attorney Patten brought out, contributed $700 to Hurley's campaign fund; Muldoon, $1000.

Miss Foley said she knew nothing about their contributions. She knows both men, she admitted, and also, she said, Lawrence P. Harrington, executive secretary of the commission, but she denied that influence was used to get her her job.

Charles J. McManus, Oneida street, Lynn, was questioned about a $100 contribution to Hurley's campaign fund made by his father, Charles E., now dead. McManus said he knew nothing about the contribution. His father, he said, was "a personal friend" of Hurley.

Edward G. Riley, regional supervisor for the State Employment Service, absorbed by the Unemployment Compensation Commission, was questioned concerning statements appearing in his application for his $3360-a-year job.

Riley stated he lives on Larch road, Cambridge, not far from Governor Hurley's home. Attorney Patten brought out the fact that Riley votes from an address on St. Germain street, Back Bay.

Formerly a customer's man for E. A. Pierce & Company, Riley's application states he left that concern to go into the wholesale liquor business. Attorney Patten produced a letter from the brokerage firm stating Riley was "let go" because of a dispute over an account.

"That's not true!" Riley declared.

Another witness was E. Francis O'Day, former Boston College ballplayer, now a supervisor in the employment service. Patten questioned him concerning two Hurley campaign contributions of $25 each, listed as having been made by "E. Francis O'Day."

O'Day said they were not made by him.

He was sent to "school" at the State Public Works building to study the unemployment compensation law, and got paid for going, he testified. Asked whether there was much "political talk" in the class, he replied:

"Most of the members were active in politics."

DEFENDANTS—Four men on trial on contempt of court charges are pictured at Suffolk Court today.

Open Dolan Contempt Trial

said Attorney Timothy F. Callahan, counsel for Dolan, to Judge Fosdick, "but I wonder if your investigation of this case would in any way bias you or prejudice you in sitting on the case?"

CALL COURT CLERK

Judge Fosdick replied that he had questioned individual jurors as to whether they had been approached, that the jurors all had said no, and that the court was not prejudiced.

The first witness called by Assistant District Attorney Frederick T. Doyle was William M. Prendible, clerk of Suffolk Superior Criminal Court.

Prendible testified as to the grand jury's returning indictments against the defendants and as to the jury list being made up.

Opening of the trial climaxed weeks of investigation and legal moves by Assistant District Attorney Frederick T. Doyle, who called off the scheduled trial of Dolan, Quinn and Edward J. Supple on larceny and conspiracy charges in connection with which the alleged jury tampering took place.

Three other persons, known only as "John Does," were indicted with the defendants for contempt of court. Supple is in no way connected with the trial which is to begin.

The courtroom and halls outside were crowded as the trial neared. An hour beforehand no seats were vacant in the courtroom, and spectators milled in the corridors trying to get in.

All four defendants had filed answers with the court yesterday, making a general denial of the charges against them. At the same time they asked that the complaint be dismissed. About 30 witnesses were scheduled to be called at the trial.

G-Men Trace Horse Dopers

other tracks, particularly in Maryland, this season.

Through his long experience at race tracks throughout the country, Tom Thorpe, steward at Suffolk Downs, arranged for the special guard at the track here.

So far, as a result, there has been no sponging or doping of horses at the Boston track.

On the trail of the narcotics race fixers are a squad of G-men under Harry Anslinger, chief of the Federal Narcotics Bureau at Washington, and a search now is under way for the Iowa and Florida cars.

Meanwhile the other squad of G-men are hopeful that they are nearing the end of a four-year trail of a group responsible for counterfeiting a $20 note of the 1934 Federal Reserve series, so perfect that it is almost indistinguishable from a real bill.

Not since the days of 1915-1916, and the early part of 1917, has a counterfeit plate been so long undiscovered.

From the present plate has come a steady stream of counterfeit $20 bills, passed all over the nation, and considerable of it at horse and dog tracks in New England.

The Boston Evening American learned that the same race track tout has also given to the G-men counterfeit seekers descriptions of four men connected with making and passing the bogus banknote.

Not even a passer has been thus far apprehended by authorities, so perfect is the bill.

Federal authorities refuse to say if any of the "queer money" has been passed at Suffolk Downs this year, but last year this track, as well as other local horse and dog tracks, had their share of the counterfeits.

Gannett Assails 'Deal' in Politics

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 17 (AP)—Frank E. Gannett, publisher and chairman of the National Committee to Uphold Constitutional Government, charged in a statement today that "the President personally and through his agents, is trying to control the primary elections."

"What right has a President of the United States, whose chief duty is to carry out the laws made by Congress, to go into state after state and try to pick Senators and Congressmen who will vote as he tells them?" Gannett asked.

"I am sure that when once we show the people how this abusive executive power undermines our constitutional balance and creates a personal one-man rule, they will get up on their hind legs and throw out every hand-picked 'yes' man of the White House machine."

$200,000 Fire Perils Holyoke, 2 Injured

HOLYOKE, May 17—Whipped by a brisk wind, fire starting in a five-story celluloid factory swept across two city blocks here today, threatening destruction to the business section of the city.

Fire apparatus from Holyoke, Chicopee, Northampton and Springfield fought flames fed by paper mills, an upholstery factory and rag paper shops.

Two firemen were injured by falling timbers. Damage was already estimated at $200,000.

CALL FOR HELP

The fire started in the Zeloid Products Company, showered wind-swept sparks to adjacent buildings which immediately burst into flame. A general alarm was sounded and call for help was sent to nearby cities and towns when the Holyoke firemen were unable to stem the blaze.

The flames quickly spread to the American Upholstering Company, the Raymond Kimball Waste Paper Company, the Downing Rag Paper Company and the Purvis Machine Wire Company.

Firemen hoped to hold the blaze at the edge of the canal, near the Connecticut river.

2 FIREMEN HURT

The canal separates the fire area from a congested tenement district. Firemen poured water on roofs of houses on the tenement side of the canal.

The fire was believed to be of incendiary origin.

Deputy Chief Daniel J. McLean suffered a fractured wrist and a sprained back when struck by falling timber on Abbott street. Fireman Peter J. Brober, of Holyoke, suffered lacerations of the hand when struck by a flying piece of concrete.

Two fire companies fought to save the Franklin Paper Company, one of the largest mills, when sparks spattered through open windows and set fire to paper.

The resignations of the two, steward and the head farmer, followed Buckley's investigation of hospital affairs.

COPPER SITUATION

The copper situation is likely to receive a bit of extra attention from analysts in coming weeks. Prices have been fairly well maintained by domestic producers by virtue of active foreign markets.

Home consumption is considered the real key to the future, however, and if it does not shortly improve, we will not be surprised by forecasts of lower quotations. Stocks, it should be noted, increased in April.

The most impressive thing about [illegible] in our opinion, is the huge volume of money awaiting investment. Daily brokers tell us of [illegible] that inquiry by a potential [illegible] such buying power as a whole. [illegible] that some day we get [illegible] a powerful [illegible] sensitiveness is striking.

* * *

The trouble right now is that business men see nothing about which to wax enthusiastic and accordingly limit their activities to analyses and research in hopes of uncovering attractive opportunities for later attention. Cautiousness is still our watchword.

Yale Glee Club Voices By Radio Waves Tonight

By N. F. T.

HAILING the New Haven Tercentenary the Yale Glee Club gets the air (WAAB) from Woolsey Hall in the Connecticut college city between 8 and 8:30 this evening.

BUFFOONERY in the Mary Boland manner is made ready for the Al Jolson air audience (WEEI) over 8:30 to 9 o'clock stretching tonight.

NONE OF the "weeks" manifestations electing and honoring this, that and the other have been accorded the attention and time consumed by current "Air Mail Week" promotion. Every radio station in every city of the country is giving the public not to mention the government, a volume of gratis hours that would figure to more than a million dollars if estimated on a commercial basis.

Mary Boland

MAYBE SOME thoughtful program planner will work out a "Lafayette's Week" one of these high-powered days.

NEW ENGLAND Council auspices brings Dr. Kerl T. Compton, the M. I. T. prexy, to the "mike" for a talk (WAAB) on "New England Research" today at 2:15 p. m.

ORCHESTRAL offering directed by Carl Hoff when Al Pearce puts his "Watch the Fun Go By" airing across the waves Tuesdays (WEEI) at 9 o'clock this evening, will be by musicians who play for Charles Hector, the WEEI band leader.

THIS NECK of the woods is also getting "Believe It or Not" mention when Ripley holds forth (WNAC) tonight from 10 to 10:30 p. m. Homer di Pietro of Revere and Ed Albany of Milwaukee will be pitted in an echo contest—to determine if Homer or Ed can create the most voluminous echo or re-echo.

THAT'S in addition to the "Mudcats" hillbilly tune turn featuring Pepper Martin and other St. Louis Cardinals ball tossers.

PEACE PLEA voicing still being four winded and U. S. Senator William King of Utah has "The Basis [illegible] of Peace" to offer (WMEX) for the 9:15 to 9:30 quarter hour this evening.

NETWORKING of "Getting the Most Out of Life" series with Dr. William Stidger is the chain plan for begin Monday, May 30. Dr. Stidger is the Morgan Memorial Church of Boston . . . Early life of Benjamin Franklin, a Hub young man in his printing shop days, in store as the "Cavalcade of America" drama tomorrow evening (WEEI) on the stroke of 8 p. m. . . . Thursdays address by Alfred M. Landon, 1936 Republican White House candidate, to be a WAAB airing come Thursday not a WEEI series as originally planned. A full text reserved to begin at 8 p. m. . . . Shivery staging (WAAB) awaiting mystery solving hackers when "Crimson Horror" comes this way tonight with 10 o'clock . . . If no one has told Jack Stephens, the sport-slanting chap who snaps it up from Hartford on Saturday nights he could double in verse for Edwin C. Hill any day in the week—and telling the difference would be difficult . . . Benny Goodman comes to town Thursday for a week—likewise to be among the scores of shining stars turning out to honor George (Boston After Dark) Holland when feting George is the event of events at the Copley-Plaza next Tuesday evening.

'Dead End' Kids' Life Stories for Screen

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

LOS ANGELES, May 17—Author Jerry Wald, reformed columnist, casting about for an idea, decided that the career of the "Dead End" kids would make excellent copy for a screen play. So he has written an epic called "Something To Live For," which is a glorified edition of the lives of these kids raised in the slums.

Louella O. Parsons

Wald's story is that of a playwright who takes the East Side youngsters into his home to get color for a play and then is unable to return them to their old surroundings because they become famous as actors.

Humphrey Bogart has been chosen for the role of the playwright, and the Dead Enders, Billy Halop, Bobby Jordan, Hunts Hall, Leo Gorcey and Bernard Punsley, play themselves. I don't suppose Jerry would have found this inspiration if "Crime School," the recent movie made with the boys and Humphrey, hadn't done surprise business at the theaters where it has been shown to date.

The inside trading that prevails in Hollywood as the latest news of this unfortunately dull season. Today Columbia bought "The Duchess of Broadway" from Samuel Goldwyn, and Harry Cohn, who has a penchant for taking stories which other studios find difficult to produce and making them boxoffice, already has plans for filming it.

He will star Jean Arthur to follow "You Can't Take It With You," the screen play which brings Jean back after an absence of over a year.

A line or two: Spencer Tracy slipped out of town without telling a soul and sailed for Honolulu but he left word he would return in two weeks for "Boystown." Maybe so, but that would only give Spence a few days in Hawaii . . . Bette Davis has been elected president of the Tailwaggers Foundation of America, a society for the protection of all animals who wag their tails. The cutest applicant for membership in that organization is a six-weeks-old lamb which has chosen a baby goat just her age and size as a playmate.

Snapshots of Hollywood

Boswell Birdwell denies the Janet Gaynor-Richard Carlson romance is a press stunt devised to let the world know that Janet and Tyrone Power have parted. Jean Crawford pulled a hottie when she said there were so many fox cars at the preview of "Holiday" that it looked as if the whole Fox lot had trapped. Norma Shearer and Merle Oberon as winsome a pair as I've seen in a long time, applauding the picture.

Jack Oakie so thin you can hardly recognize him and Venita Varden, his bride, ten pounds heavier in the audience; also Cary Grant's best girl, Phyllis Brooks, who came with Johnny Maschio. Cary's in Honolulu Leo Carrillo riding into the Roosevelt Hotel on horseback a la Gene Autry to welcome Governor Allred of Texas. That's all for today. See you tomorrow.

Stars to Join In Tribute To Holland

The George Holland friendship dinner honoring the Boston American's drama critic and columnist will assemble at the Copley Plaza Hotel next Tuesday evening one of the greatest local gatherings of stage stars in many years.

Outstanding newspaper theatre critics, social professionals, and personal friends of the guest of honor have vowed to make Holland's testimonial one of the most memorable events ever attempted in the presence of "those who make Broadway what it is." Practically every Broadway star will be present.

Joe Laurie, one of the Hub's best humorists, will act as toastmaster.

It is the intention of the committee, headed by Joseph H. Lawrence, executive secretary of the Variety Theatres, Inc., to have the dinner concluded in time for the guests to attend the premiere of "Dancing Lady" at the Metropolitan theatre, which opens at midnight.

Tickets for the affair are available at the committee's headquarters at the Copley Plaza Hotel and at 60 Scollay square.

Out of the Tomb!

The Editor Says:

The real Dark Ages of Europe were the times of the persecutors—persecutors of religion, persecutors of racial minorities.

The advancement of human civilization, and the development of political freedom, seemed to have laid the persecuting spirit away.

Now, to the sorrow of all right thinking people, it has risen again, worse than a specter of the cruel past. We see it in Europe, in dictatorial countries especially. Let us resolve that we shall NEVER see it here.

But more resolution is needed. To keep the black spirit out of America, FREEDOM OF SPEECH and FREEDOM must be safeguarded—democracy in the processes of government; freedom in religious form.

Our Brotherhood Day observances should be continued, in Boston and elsewhere throughout the country. The tolerance they exemplify must prevail. It is our greatest national asset.

WILLIAM GALLACHER, Communist member of the British Parliament, has properly been refused a visa to visit the United States.

Gallacher had been invited as a "fraternal delegate" to attend the Congress of the American Communist Party, which opens on May 20.

Gallacher belongs to an international organization, the Communist International (Comintern of Moscow), that is pledged to the OVERTHROW OF GOVERNMENTS BY FORCE AND VIOLENCE.

He is barred out by our immigration laws—and SHOULD STAY OUT.

But let us go further, by more. Let the Senate pass the McCormack Bill, already approved by the House, requiring propaganda representatives of foreign governments or individuals to register with the State Department.

And let Congress kill the iniquitous Dies Bill, which lets down the immigration bars.

Let us CLEAN OUR DEMOCRATIC HOUSE before the termites of foreign tyranny destroy the house.

The Political Parade

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN

WASHINGTON, May 17

WHEN Congress fixed at $25,000,000,000 the total amount of government bonds which may be outstanding at any one time, it thought it was doing something.

It was. But it has been doing its spending spree stuff in an even bigger way.

Those who dance must pay the fiddler. It was to obtain a few more sheets of music that Secretary Morgenthau appeared before the Senate Finance Committee.

What it comes down to is that the axe is going to be lowered. More banks are to be told just how many more bonds they have graciously been allowed to buy.

The law fixes at $16,000,000,000 the total amount of public debt obligations that may be outstanding at any one time. Of this sum the short-term obligations are fixed at $2,000,000,000.

It develops that Mr. Morgenthau, who has to fix the borrowing dollars for the Congressional spenditrix, is within $3,000,000,000 of his legal limit on bonds.

He is with $6,000,000,000 of his limit on the short-term obligations.

A bill has been quietly dropped into the hopper at both ends of the Capitol, reported by the Ways and Means Committee, the object of which is to [illegible] the present limit on bonds and to consume the whole $16,000,000,000 under one application.

THE TIP is that the bill will pass. The new law would enable Mr. Morgenthau to boost the limit of bonds that may be outstanding to a whale sum of $45,000,000,000.

The plan appears to be to convert a large amount of [illegible] short-term obligations into long-term bonds.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

THERE are lots of innocent little human traps and habits which are harder to endure than out-and-out cruelty, adversity or non-support. An inertial weariness, ruling millions, wearing a ready mask at night, snapping up the world-shaken eternal hope, dancing and learning to play the sax phone are among them.

It isn't the thing itself that matters so much as the eternal REPETITION of it which finally breaks down the resistance, saps the endurance and rasps the nerves to the breaking point.

They used to kill the early martyrs by tying them to a stake and letting water drop gently in the same spot on the victim's forehead until he went insane and died. That was called "slow torture."

Nowadays, if a husband tried that on his wife, or vice versa, the courts would probably classify it as "incompatibility."

What of Today, Tomorrow?

Fewer Jobs Appear For Tech Graduates

Highly specialized, of course, are the men who will receive their degrees next month when they are graduated from Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

But for many of the budding engineers and artisans, it will take considerable engineering and artistry to obtain jobs in their chosen field.

Today Technology speaks on the outlook for its graduates of 1938.

By PAUL WHELTON

Boston Evening American Staff Writer

For Massachusetts Institute of Technology's top-bracket students, the problem of employment upon graduation in 1938 is non-existent.

For the run-of-the-mine graduates, however, there are clouds ahead, as in the case of sheepskin-takers at most New England colleges.

Tech, under the presidency of Dr. Karl T. Compton, offers courses in almost every field of technical training. It has a basic placement training program, optional with students who wish to prepare themselves for the technique of job-finding.

There will be somewhere near 500 men who will receive regular degrees on June 7, with some 200 others to receive advanced degrees.

"THIS IS GOING TO BE AN EXTREMELY DIFFICULT YEAR FOR THE AVERAGE M. I. T. GRADUATE TO FIND EMPLOYMENT," said Nathaniel Mela Sage, director of the Placement Bureau.

Dr. Compton

"Our outstanding men, those with exceptional scholastic standing and possessing personality present no problem.

"Personality is sought after by employers seeking Tech men for various types of engineering jobs.

"Some men have several job offers. These are the exceptions of course.

"It still is easy to say the employment situation as it will affect the men who graduate June 7, will at least be about one half of the unemployment situation as it now exists.

"WE ARE CONVINCED THAT THERE ARE PLENTY of jobs for ENGINEERS WHEN BUSINESS PICKS UP.

"There is a demand for graduate chemical engineers, and it comes from all companies.

However, this year the demand is lagging appreciably behind that at the same period in 1937. While mechanical engineers are also lagging well in the matter of hiring in industry, the automotive field is slow.

There is some demand from manufacturing concerns, both large and small.

"THE GENERAL DEMAND TREND FOR ENGINEERS IS LAGGING 6 TO 12 WEEKS BEHIND 1937," said Director Sage.

"A great many of our executive assurance of jobs when business picks up. THEY ARE ON COMPANY LISTS FOR EMPLOYMENT, AND IF BUSINESS IMPROVES THEY WILL GO TO WORK IMMEDIATELY.

"The salary question, as nearly as can be estimated, is about the same as a year ago, with the average starting salary offered at about $125 a month.

"The placement training program of Tech tries to point out to the men the types of jobs that engineers are qualified for. During the senior year about eight placement lectures, by prominent industrial executives, are given.

"JOB FINDING DEPENDS IN LARGE MEASURE UPON THE INDIVIDUAL HIMSELF. IT MEANS A MATTER OF ABILITY AND PERSONALITY. LET ME REPEAT THAT IT IS PERSONALITY THAT IS SOUGHT AFTER. BOTH, HOWEVER, ARE PREREQUISITES. OF TWO MEN WITH EQUAL TECHNICAL ABILITY, THE CHAP WITH THE BETTER PERSONALITY SHOULD LAND THE JOB."

Employment for research chemists is far as regards volume, according to the M. I. T. director. Most of such openings are with large firms which have large research laboratories.

There is a fair demand for students who take a five year co-operative course in chemical engineering at the end of which they receive both graduate and undergraduate degrees.

Such courses are conducted by the Institute in co-operation with organizations like the Du Pont Company, the Eastman Kodak Company, Bureau Brand and others.

"A GOOD NUMBER OF OUR MEN FIND THEIR OWN JOBS," SAID DIRECTOR SAGE. "FAMILY CONNECTIONS AND PERSONAL CONTACTS AS WELL AS THE HELPFUL EXPERIENCE GAINED IN SUMMER JOBS LEADS THESE MEN TO GET LOCATED.

"It is no use to try to say that one field is better or more promising than any other. Hiring employment specialists.

"Some of the larger companies, graduates are employed more extensively in one field than in another. For example, the electrical companies take the most, but many of the smaller companies could find places for a limited number.

"The Technology placement director said that a number of the courses in heavy chemical industry seem to be doing better than average in securing jobs this year.

They locate in such fields as food manufacture, private laboratory research and state and governmental agencies.

However, in the matter of the aeronautical engineers it is too early yet to estimate how well they will fare toward obtaining immediate employment.

"Usually our men take slow," the director declared, "that they are slow to get placed, but in the long run they do well.

"IT IS GENERALLY TRUE THAT TECH MEN, ONCE THEY FIND JOBS, DO EXTREMELY WELL UNDER NORMAL CONDITIONS, IN HOLDING THEIR POSITIONS."

The Technology Placement Bureau serves as a central agency for job-finding activities, although each department, of which there are 19, has its individual placement officer to assist students toward jobs when they receive their degrees.

Tomorrow the Boston Evening American will present the list of the series of interviews with New England college officials.

Girl About Town by Marjorie McBride

"OUTRIDERS" is the high-sounding title by which the authorities at Suffolk Downs know Bob Turner and Arthur Hurt. To the casual racing fan, they are "pony boys." They lead the racing thoroughbreds through the track parade, and try to get them to the post without mishap.

Marjorie McBride

To a lot of customers afraid to ask questions, lest they disclose they are new to racing, the boys are men of mystery. So the Girl About Town did a little research for their benefit.

Turner is the one who rides the cool black gelding. Arthur Hurt is the other one. Turner's pony is named "Major." The horse never raced, but he's a tradition. He is valued for his even disposition, speed and smartness.

Pony Boy Turner is old to the racetrack. He started riding 20 years ago this summer at Empire City. He won his first on something called Gladdy. He got heavy, and had to take to wrestle closely. He got heavy again, and had to turn "outrider." He is serving his fourth year at the Downs.

Born on Long Island, close to Aqueduct, he is supposed to be an expert in preventing runaways during the track parade. There was a time, last summer, he caught Mr. E. I. Wade's "Up and Up" as he was about to bolt around the oval. Brought back to the gate, the horse won a $5000 stake.

The most exciting day Turner ever had was at Narragansett. He was leading 12 two-year-olds to the post. They had been trained to leave the start, jog gate on a trot. Back of the track is a railroad switch. The bell clanged. The flighty two-year-olds started off in all directions. Three jockeys were thrown. It took Bob and the "Major" 35 minutes to get them back in line, but the race was run.

A STRANGE will, that could come from nowhere in America but Boston, was recently filed for probate. It was that of the late Susan K. Pratt, a wealthy widow of this city. She directed that an oil painting of her pet collie be given to the M. S. P. C. A., but ordered that oils of her family be destroyed!

LOUIS CABOT BARTOL, a Social Registerite who directs a crafts school in Boylston street, has just returned from North Carolina with more kind words for the "hill billies" than Southern authors are giving them.

He says there is a crude native culture there that is well worth saving. There are unsought craftsmen who are artists. They work with materials they find about them . . . applewood pine needles, cornstalks. Whole families make a living in cottage industries, such as making cornstalk dolls. And many of them can't sign their names. Their speech is the purest of Anglo-Saxon. It goes back to Shakespeare.

"BABY" is an expression with so many meanings the following sign in a Jamaica Plain photographer's shop has its humor. It says to the customers:

Get Facts -:- by Hugh S. Johnson

WASHINGTON D. C.—What this country needs in its present dizzy cyclone of swirling and political excitement dust, assertions, assaults, crashes, cries back and sincerity is not more plane panaceas and optimistic diagnoses. It is facts.

Take this whole issue of TVA now. Is it true that the utilities are fudging upward the real value of their properties for rate making purposes? Is it true that the Government is fudging its values downward? If so, in either case, how much?

General Johnson

You can't enter this discussion or form an intelligent judgment for either side without knowing the answer to these questions. Both sides make their own assertions but they are so both partisan and palpably self-serving as to make them suspect as obviously false. Now the truth here is ascertainable and the practicability and justice of a great Governmental policy depends exclusively on that truth.

It will never be learned in any other way than by an impartial fact-finding commission. The Congressional investigation of TVA will not be that. It is a mixed commission of pro-TVA and anti-TVA politicians heavily weighted for the pros. No such adversary group is any good either in investigation or administration.

Each pro cancels out one con and what is left makes the judgment. If what is left is pro, the judgment will be pro and the reverse of what is left is con. It would be only if what is left is impartial that we could have impartial fact finding. In this case what is left is pro. This committee isn't going to investigate TVA. It is going to investigate the utilities, save them and whitewash TVA.

Quite apart from TVA as the whole question of hydroelectric power is it true that steam generation is generally very much cheaper and gives employment to 10 times as many people? If it is true, the foundation drops out from under another policy of ponderous effect. Here are the truth is ascertainable.

Since writing a single column on this subject my desk is piled high with assertions, essays and statistics about as many pro as con. No individual can reconcile these divergencies much less the average reader.

WHAT CAUSED this depression? Mr. Leon Henderson tells the President and the President tells the public that hiking prices and unwieldy inventories caused it. People with large inventories say that they were no more than normal for the rate of business when they were accumulated and that they were large merely because business suddenly and unexpectedly became small.

The truth here is of vital importance to the long-suffering public. Here also it is fairly ascertainable but not from the self-serving of statistical advocacy. Impartial scientific fact-finding is the nation's greatest need. No scientist would inject a serum into the arm of a single patient until it was proved preventive. But statesmen, it seems, will hazard the welfare of 130,000,000 people on a guess.

The Brighter Side -:- by Damon Runyon

COLUMBIA, Mo.—The value of a course in a school of journalism to a newspaper career is something that is often debated by old time newspapermen. A lot of them think it is no good.

These fellows argue that the graduates of the schools of journalism usually have to unlearn a lot of things on entering the professional parts that they have been taught at school.

Damon Runyon

Well, this may be true now and then but we do not believe it applies generally. Some schools may have instructors who do not know any too much about the professional game themselves. However, we do not see how it could be true of graduates of a school like this one here in Columbia, because the instructors are experienced newspapermen.

They give their students identically the same schooling they would give them, were the instructors back on city or copy desks tutoring the untamed cubs in the manly art of journalism. There are no profound mysteries about the newspaper game. The fundamentals are simple and have changed little across the years.

We are not referring especially to writers. We are talking about publishers, and circulation and advertising men who are the newspaper makers as much as the writers. We classify them all as newspapermen. On the other hand, some of the greatest newspapermen we have ever known were men of profound intellectual attainments, educated right up to the nines, and broadened by travel and contacts and reading.

We agree that a man may hop out of a grammar school into a newspaper office and become a better newspaperman than a boy graduated from a school of journalism. We do not agree that this is because of any shortcoming on the part of the school, however. It is more apt to be the difference in material.

WE THINK that where the material is identical the boy from school would have such an advantage over the other chap that it would be no contest.

We were never any too hot a supporter of schools of journalism until we saw this one at Missouri and had the opportunity of studying its methods of operation closely and viewing its natterad at first hand. Now we are pretty much of a convert.

We notice that a number of our old time newspaper friends who came up the hard way to successful careers in the Middle and Rocky Mountain West are sending their sons to Missouri school.

Of course it does not follow that every boy or girl who takes a journalistic course becomes a journalist, or even an advertising vender. Many of them are smart enough to discover very quickly that they have no flair for the game and try something for which they are better adapted. Meantime, they have had an experience and training that certainly does them no harm.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

I HAVE an old, Indian meal basket, woven firmly of raffia, with a design of birds upon it, in red and black.

There is a break in that design . . . a little open space where the spreading wings do not quite meet. The squaw who made that basket left that space so "the spirit could go in and out."

She could not have told you what she meant by "the spirit." But she was sure that there was something in a man's life and a man's work beside the man himself.

Elsie Robinson

She looked at the growing corn. There was a Mystery in the growing corn. There was something that brought the corn out of the hard, dry seed, sent it pushing up through the dark earth, made it break into blade and blossom and fruitful ear.

And there was the same Mystery in a man. Something made a man grow . . . Something set a man with desire to love and fight and dream, and create. Always there was that mystery, and even the commonest man . . . and in the commonest thing that a man did.

So the squaw left a little break in the design she wove. Not because she thought an actual spirit moved in and out of the basket, but because a Mystery moved in and out of the life of a man.

Always there was that Mystery—

Always man touched it when he made things.

Always there was something wonderful about the work that a man made . . . something that made it more than just a piece of work. That was why good work made a man proud and happy . . . made him honored by the tribe.

YOU LAUGH? You say that was "just savage superstition"? I wonder. Think of the things that other people made by hand—people who were not savages.

Look at old tapestries and carvings . . . hand-made rugs . . . hand-blown beams—look at the little oak desk your grandfather made on winter evenings and the bedspread your grandmother wove working by candlelight.

Queerly uneven work . . . not at all like the perfect machine-made stuff. Yet see how carefully how lovingly it was made. They had a feeling about that work that you can never have about machine-made work. Ask old workers and they will tell you that it was good to make things with one's hands.

It did something to a man . . . it did something for a man. Out of that work came something more than a piece of a bedspread.

IT GAVE A MAN A CHANCE TO EXPRESS HIMSELF. TO EXPRESS SOMETHING THAT MOVED MYSTERIOUSLY WITHIN HIMSELF. THERE WAS AN ADVENTURE AND A MYSTERY IN MAKING A DESK BY HAND. IN WEAVING a bedspread by hand an Adventure and Mystery you can't find with A MACHINE.

Was that why men and women seemed happier who lived more in those old days even though they had never heard of modern conveniences?

Was that why they were willing to work longer hours at smaller wages . . . why they so often worked for no wage at all . . . just for the joy of the thing?

Can you imagine a man running a riveting machine just for the joy of the thing?)

Was there room "for the Spirit to move" when a man made things with his own hands?

And is the Spirit shut out when the work is run through a machine?

So snap it. 4—Letter carriers were first uniformed in gray by an order of the Postmaster General on July 27, 1868. So what? So they started that gag about shooting the Philadelphia mailman in mistake for a Confederate soldier. So what? So Bugs Baer digs the gag up again 60 years later and gets credit for it. So what? So F. P. A. goes nuts trying to peg it. He knows it has a familiar ring but he can't prove it. So what? So Bugs Baer keeps quiet for 20 more years and gets credit for it while F. P. A. frets at the ineffectual file index. So what? So now Bugs Baer tells all after selling the gag to Raymond Hitchcock, Eddie Foy, Lew Dockstader, Marie Dressler, Nat Wills and Hagenbacks Animal Act.

MAKE PERFECT CUSTARD PIE THIS EASY WAY

Filling delicately firm, crust so tender and flaky

Here's the new way to make custard pie that gives success every time. Just remember two things. First, bake your pie in a very hot oven (450°). Then your filling won't soak into the crust and make it soggy. Second, use Spry, the new, purer ALL-vegetable shortening to get extra flaky, tender crust.

Triple-creamed Spry gives flakier pastry, lighter cakes in half the mixing time. Cooking experts for 281 home making schools say it's the creamiest shortening they ever used. Better for frying, too. Try Spry—make this pie today!

Custard Pie

3 eggs and 2 egg yolks or 4 eggs, slightly beaten	3 cups milk
½ cup sugar	1 teaspoon vanilla
½ teaspoon salt	1 Spry Pie Shell
	Nutmeg

Beat eggs slightly and add sugar and salt. Add milk and vanilla. Strain custard mixture into unbaked pie shell and sprinkle with nutmeg. Bake in very hot oven (450° F.) 30 to 40 minutes, or until knife inserted comes out clean.

Spry Pie Shell

1½ cups [illegible]
[illegible]
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup Spry
3 tablespoons [illegible] (about)

Sift flour and salt together. Add ⅓ of Spry and cut in until mixture is as fine as corn meal. Add remaining Spry and continue cutting until particles are size of a navy bean. (Notice how easily triple-creamed Spry cuts into your flour.) Sprinkle water, 1 tablespoon at a time, over mixture. With a fork, work lightly together until a dough is formed. Roll dough ⅛-inch thick. Place dough in pie plate and let relax 5 minutes. Pat with ball of dough. Trim pastry ½-inch larger than pan and turn back edge. Flute rim.

(All measurements in these recipes are level)

Try Spry for lighter cakes

The $500,000 Romance -:- By Lewis A. Brown

A Race For Love And Gold

CHAPTER 1

Marylin Keene's trained fingers stood clicking her adding machine and her typewriter put pages of figures relating to the finances of the Westlands Lumber Company in a drawer where prying eyes might not see them, and went out, locking the door to her little office.

As she crossed Main street to make the short walk up Maple road to her mother's little home, she glanced up at the windows in the Thorpe Building.

She did it almost mechanically. Lettering on the second floor windows proclaimed the office of Thorpe and Thorpe Attorneys-at-Law.

It had been more than a week since Marylin had seen Sherry Thorpe. During that week Marylin had discovered something—she was deeply and sincerely in love with Sheridan Thorpe.

And yet being strictly honest with herself, Marylin had to admit that there was no reason why Sherry Thorpe had to drop in and see her. He had not made love to her. He had not even found words to express the way he had been inspired to her during the year since he was admitted to the bar and went into his father's office.

Marylin had a nice office in Westlands where she did typing, stenography, accounting and similar things, even to the extent of being a notary public.

Now and then Sherry Thorpe would bring work for Marylin to do. Sometimes it was because the Thorpe stenographer was away or sick, and again because there was too much of it or it was technical for their stenographer.

TEARS BRING BEAUTY

In this manner two things happened—Sherry Thorpe came to realize that the little Keene girl, who had been just a high school kid when he went away to study law, had grown into a pert, and sweet young lady.

The second thing that happened has been mentioned. Marylin came to realize that she was in love with Sherry Thorpe.

And Sherry had never said a word of love to her. He had been duly appreciative of her ability to help him in his work, to type briefs and to do a good many things that had never been required of a stenographer.

There was nothing in the way he looked at her desk when he would bring in a dictaphone record for her to transcribe, or the way he smiled when she brought in the finished work, to indicate that he was in love with her.

In the meantime Marylin's home life was not all it might have been. Mrs. Keene was a widow who had married Marylin's father when Marylin was a little girl. Marylin was fond of her father, but she and Mrs. Keene had never been congenial. Marylin had been glad to get away to college, and Mrs. Keene had not objected to her staying away during the summer vacations.

"Have you had any of the things you want to do?"

"Yes, I've had a lot of fun. I've been over the Lumber Company books for them a couple of times. I've been fascinated by the way Professor Langford has been measuring the water for various ways he has to run it in a reservoir."

"Have you had any of the things you want to do?"

"Yes, I've had a lot of fun. I've been over the Lumber Company books for them a couple of times. I've been fascinated by the way Professor Langford has been measuring the water for various ways he has to run it in a reservoir."

MOTHER KEENE'S remark shatters Marylin's poise. "Wasn't that young Mr. Thorpe with Flora?" she asked.

"Pretty swell, if you ask me," said Mrs. King.

"Not so bad" and Flora Cunningham drove on.

The car was indeed a gay one, canary yellow with chocolate and chromium trim.

"Showin' off—I never was so very crazy about Flora Cunningham," Mrs. King remarked.

"It's a beautiful car," Marylin said, rather wistfully.

"She wheedled it out of Colonel Proctor just as she wheedles everything out of him—Joe Ryan, who sold the car told me the Colonel bought it for Flora."

"Yes — she's a terror, you know," said Marylin.

"Humph! So are you for that matter."

Marylin laughed at this and shook her head.

VAGUE TIES BIND THEM

"Flora is a niece of the Colonel's second wife. I'm so distantly related that it doesn't count. Mrs. King. Mother was a sort of a cousin to Colonel Proctor's first wife—so there's really not a thing stop at all."

"Well it's too bad the Colonel got such an awful heap of money and not a crack nor crumb to show it to exceptin' that lady, Miss Flora Cunningham and of course you'll come in for some."

Marylin shook her head and laughed.

"Not a penny—mother and I haven't the slightest claim. We've never expected anything, and we know that is exactly what we will get. I must run along, mother will be waiting for me for tea."

"Tired dear," Mrs. Keene noted Marylin.

"Not a bit, mother. I've agreed to ask Mrs. King about her income."

"She told me, and it's none of your business. And I'm sure that a successful attorney like I saw her step and wave at you. She has driven past the second time and it's out of her way. Was he showing off for you?"

"I don't know, mother. I wouldn't want to guess. If I had anything to do with it—"

They sat down to the table in the living room.

"Work hard, my child?" her mother asked.

"Yes, not a great deal. I'm going over the Lumber Company books for them a second time. Professor Langford is measuring the water for various ways he has to run it in a reservoir."

"Have you had any of the things you want to do?"

"Yes, I've had a lot of fun. I've been over the Lumber Company books for them a couple of times. I've been fascinated by the way Professor Langford has been Whether Senator Carroll is in a mood to accept an appointment is not certain . . . It was his intention to run for Sheriff in the coming primaries, but Senator Carroll changed his mind . . . His constituents at this writing are expecting to find his name on the ballot to succeed himself . . . But the defection of his strong supporter, "Sonny" McDonough from the Carroll board of strategy, has changed the complexion of the next battle of ballots in the Carroll bailiwick.

Boston will be the try-out point for the Mercury theater's Shakespearean revel of next season . . . That ambitious organization has scored for the third time in a season with a verbatim production of G. Bernard Shaw's "Heartbreak House" . . . The Shakespearean project will be called "Five Kings," and will embrace parts of "Henry IV," "Henry V," and "Henry VI," and "Richard III."

It will require two consecutive nights of playing . . . The venture will be attempted in co-operation with the Theater Guild, but Orson Welles, young director of the Mercury Theater, will be the boss . . . If "Five Kings" takes to the road before Broadway, Director Welles has nominated Boston as the scene of the world premiere

Once Over Lightly:

Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., and Prince Mohamid Ali Abrahim, cousin to the Turkish King of Egypt, met E. Nils T. Granlund's New York nightclub recently . . . Granlund generally introduces prominent visitors under the common name of "Joe Doakes" . . . He made an exception for Prince Mohamid And So Forth and introduced him to the girls—and to Franklin D., Jr.—as "Mr. Deeko" . . . The Prince and F. D., Jr., were in each other's company for hours before their real identities were disclosed . . . The Granlund show is attracting prosperous business to the Keith-Boston

A Ruby Newman orchestra, under the direction of Sammy Eisen, will play for dancing and an elaborate show at the Boston Press Photographers' Ball . . . The affair is scheduled for a week from Thursday at the Statler . . . One of Gertrude Dolan's star pupils, Margaret O'Toole of Roxbury, will make her debut soon in a New York chorus.

In the Church of St. Ambrose, Latham, New York, the 20th anniversary of the ordination of Rev. Michael J. Dwyer will be celebrated June 7 . . . He is pastor of that church . . . Bostonians remember the career of Father Dwyer as district attorney of Suffolk County, as former president of the Clover Club—and as a brilliant lawyer, orator and talented singer.

In Natick next Monday night, Martin T. Hall will be guest at a complimentary dinner in tribute to the 25th anniversary of his regime as moderator of the town meeting . . . It was Martin Hall who managed Richard H. Long's campaign for Governor . . .

Since the picture "Vivacious Lady" showed a scene in which Ginger Rogers's room was No. 307, that series of digits has been getting a tremendous play in the number-pool . . . Seeing Sheldon Fairbanks at Suffolk Downs brings to mind the spectacular record that young man achieved several seasons ago when, with a four horse stable comprising Gold Step, Old Baldy, Paper Profits and Playing On, he won 28 races in a year . . . Many a 15-horse stable fails to do as well . . . The South Station Theater claims that A. H. Rungee of Providence and F. A. Kuehs of Manchester, N. H., travel all the way from their home towns to Boston at least once a week to see that theater's shows.

Thwarting Father Time:

What do you think of this for a program for a 75-year oldster? . . . A talk before a group of prominent Bostonians in which they were called to task for not having approached Colonel Lindberg in an effort to make Boston the Eastern terminus for an international air line . . . A speech at the Boys' Club . . . A conference with Mayor Tobin, asking the mayor not to shut off the East Boston ferry service . . . A speech before the Maritime Association and Army Engineers with a plea that the groups promote more business for Boston harbor in addition to securing federal funds for dredging the harbor . . . An appearance before the Massachusetts Senate to further legislation making it possible for the State to accept federal grants. . . A talk to members of the Roslindale Congregational Church.

You probably have guessed the identity of this very civic-minded citizen . . . The correct answer is John F. Fitzgerald.

Final List Of Solutions In Movie Test

With today's list the correct identifications of the 49 "Name The Movie Stars" pictures is complete. Of course, these names represent the most difficult ones in this fascinating $10,000 cash prize contest; winners of which were announced beginning May 5th in Boston Evening American.

Many contestants eliminated themselves by guessing number 34, omitting the star in REACTION. Numbers 39 and 40 were reasons for deep thought too.

The last seven names were "toughest" in the opinion of the editor. The scrambled letters which caused the greatest anxiety were those in number 48 which, when properly arranged, spelled the name of OSCAR HENDRIAN. Thousands of entrants submitted the unheard of name of Gertrude Hasard. By a strange coincidence, if the letter "G" was changed to "J" one could have derived the name of JOHN CARRIDINE.

For some unknown reason, hundreds of people misspelled the name of MABEL TODD many spelling the first name MAELE. The combination culled from the letters in number 47 were most numerous and amusing.

Here is the official list! Compare it with the one you submitted. Remember! The 516 cash prizes totalling $10,000 were awarded by the judges after reading and considering the 3 word letters on "Who is my favorite movie star and why." due to the great number of correct solutions.

50 Million Bond Issue for Roads Asked by Coyne

A bill proposing a state bond issue of $50,000,000 for building and reconstructing state highways to relieve unemployment was introduced in the Legislature today by Representative Francis X. Coyne of Dorchester.

The bill provides that the $50,000,000 bond issue shall be spent within the next three years. The bond issue, if it is approved is to run for 15 years, with $3,000,000 set aside from the state's gas tax collections each year to pay it off.

"It's about time public officials face facts as they exist and not run away from them," Coyne said. "Today people in Massachusetts are starving and there is untold human misery.

"Here in Massachusetts, in our banks, is over $400,000,000 which is unemployed and which I place in the same category as hoarding. Some of this money should be put to work at once to increase purchasing power and make possible the amelioration of human misery."

Austen Lake Says

26-Year-Old Niggle; or Rube Marquard Squawk

SPEAKING OF LEFTY GROVE'S SIX straight victories and the Red Sox eight in a row, there is a wry-necked, angular gent with patent leather hair behind the bars at Suffolk Downs who claims he won 20 on a string for the New York Giants in 1912. Rube Marquard stands behind a pari-mutuel wicket, accepts your currency and deals out colored coupons on the horses to the same potential value. He gets paid for this—not much, but it is easy on his arm and jobs of any sort are scarce.

AUSTEN LAKE

When the ticket rush is check[ed] [and] the off races, Rube will [en]joy to any listener that the National League records have created him out of [whole] cloth and he has a wife [and] 10. He'll mention a game at the P[olo] Grounds against the Phillies and a [cer]tain date. But a search of the [box] scores fails to reveal such [a] game was pitched by a Rube [Mar]quard except that he was not on the team. He has the correct date but the wrong game.

Further search of the records reveals that Rube did pitch on April 20, 1912, against the Giants playing not the Phillies but the [Brook]lyn Dodgers. Nor was Rube's part in the contest recorded at the time, because his victory string was [begun] in relief parts and not until late September did the [scor]ers award starting pitchers. Then and then did any question of credit come up.

What Happened on April 20

A FURTHER REASON WHY RUBE'S EFFORT that day was a secondary matter to the feature event, was the fistic fireworks between petulant Bill Dahlen, then piloting the Dodgers, and the recently deceased Cy Rigler, the man-mountain umpire.

The deciding New York scores were knocked in by a [sing]le which Rigler ruled in fair, and to the wrath of a right [han]ded batsman who said it was foul by the length of Broadway. This [spec]imen of umpiring left Dahlen a right hand last and Rigler [con]trolling [wa]s [ha]ppy to [es]cape [o]ver the barrier and the [ne]ver-ending [ar]gument with [Ju]dgeons. A merry time was had [by] all.

For the refreshment of Rube's race-confused memory, the circumstances preceding this mutinous contest were these. Rube had pitched and won the opening game of the Giants' season by 18 to 2—a six inning contest. His next effort was here in Boston at the old Huntington ave. grounds where he won in a gentle breeze, 8 to 2. Two appearances, two triumphs. Rube's record was launched.

Rube Relieved Big Jeff

THE BRITTLE AND DUST COVERED files show that Christy Mathewson pitched the Giants' home inaugural against Brooklyn and Jeff Tesreau, now the Dartmouth varsity coach, heaved the second. Burly Jeff had Napoleon Rucker for his vis-avis and it was a nice example of the National pastime until rowdyism reared its ugly head with Chief Myers, the Indian backstop, being thumbed out of the game for speaking English idioms to Rigler which could not be found in any family dictionary. Art Wilson, a little remembered sub, buckled on the upholstery and took Myers' place.

History shows—are yuh listenin' Rube?—that Tesreau held a 2-0 margin entering the first half of the ninth inning, at which point Large Jeff got into warm water. One run had scored and two Brooklyns were on the sacks when the late John McGraw beckoned Jeff to come in out of the storm and waved Rube in.

It's all down in black and white in the Boston Evening American of that issue; how the leading hitter dug[ged] a roller to Rube who snatched it up and fired to the plate. To the consternation of the multitude—not to mention Marquard and McGraw, Wilson crowded the ball in his fist, ran the runner back to third and chucked it far into left field.

They Scored Games Differently

TWO BROOKLYN RUNS SCORED—REMEMBER RUBE? and thereafter Marquard retired the side without further ado. The score stood Brooklyn 3, Giants 2.

But if it was Art Wilson who clinched it, it was Art Wilson who gathered it back again. Coming to bat with one man on in the last half of the inning, he gentled a pitch into these neighborhood field stands—a [fou]l to the left of the foul pole. Rigger ruled "left" and Dahlen screamed "right" and the riot was on. But after the dead and dying were evacuated, the score stood Giants 4, Dodgers 3 and Rube's [pe]rsonal wrangle was launched.

Under present day scoring methods, where the retiring pitcher is charged with putting potential runs on the bases, even though they score on his relieving pitcher, Rube would have received credit for the game. But in those days the official scorer was allowed more latitude.

He could, at his own discretion, weigh the evidence and salt his verdict with sentiment. In this case the scorer gave Tesreau the victory, possibly on the strength of having pitched eight shut-out innings and the fact that the brief Dodger advantage was due to the catcher's lapse and not chargeable to the pitching. So in the season's final summation No. 20 is missed from Rube's string.

Still, though the scoring rules were more elastic then than now, history likewise shows that, as Rube's wonder grew, he was beset by fickleness to several similar quibbles in his march to No. 19. But such is the human makeup that Man forgets his benefits and remembers only his indignities. Thus Rube, while selling heart flutters and tongue fuzz to the horse clients at Suffolk Downs, will probably continue to niggle against the fates for something that happened 26 years ago.

A 'Natural' Says Foxx

Foxx Rates Doerr With Gehringer

This is the third of a series of daily articles written EXCLUSIVELY for the Boston Evening American by Jimmy Foxx, slugging sensation, giving intimate, first-hand information on the new Red Sox, American League leaders, and written just previous to his great exploits for the West.

In previous articles, we have discussed Red Sox pitchers. Today we turn our attention to the infield.

Skipping over first base where yours truly feels that he's playing as well as he ever did, we come next to second base.

Here young Bobby Doerr just can't miss. If there ever was a "natural," this 20-year-old find from California qualifies.

Princess Baba and Wrestler Husband | Will Not Cringe At Garden Bout

By JACK CONWAY

I SHALL BE interested in watching the reactions of Princess Baba of Sarawak as her wrestler husband, Bob Gregory of England, battles Art Grennon in a special bout on the Steve Casey-Yvon Robert world's championship card at the Garden on Thursday night.

Mr. Boston

When Princess Baba last sat in the royal box at the Garden, her husband was acting as referee of the Casey-Thesz title tussle which was won by the Irishman. As referee, there was little danger that Gregory would get injured.

Princess Baba comes from a country where the natives always wish to impress the girl they love with their bravery.

"Until recently," Princess Baba told me, "when a native of Sarawak wished to impress his sweetheart with his love for her he would bring to her the heads of some of his enemies. This, of course, also proved his bravery."

Due to the influence of the white Rajah of Sarawak, father of Princess Baba, there are no more head hunters in this South Sea Empire. Of course an oldtime head hunter occasionally [illegible] and chops off a few heads on the quiet just to keep in form.

Princess Baba, as [illegible] English people who have acquired a touch of color and ingenuity on the part of her father, the present ruler of Sarawak. A girl of that kind of [illegible] to give a fine account of himself in a wrestling bout. I don't want to see Princess Baba climb into the ring and [illegible] a lot of wrestling [illegible] under the supervision of a capable referee.

"When I first met Bob in England," Princess Baba told me, "I used to like to see him compete in wrestling bouts. He always won, and I was thrilled by his fine work."

Lena Levinsky Colorful Figure

THE MOST colorful woman to ever be identified with a [illegible] was [illegible] Levinsky. Lena was a sister of "King" Levinsky [illegible] and at various times acted as manager and second of her brother.

Lena [illegible] was born at the Arena one night when the going got [illegible] Levinsky [illegible] Abe at one [illegible] Abe [illegible] brother, and [illegible] Lena [illegible] corner. She cared for him between rounds and [illegible] keep cooling his right.

Lena was [illegible] manager of boxers and she entered [illegible] to protect the financial interests of her [illegible] and [illegible] a fair price in Chicago before he took up [illegible].

Women Interested in Sports

THE LADIES are interesting in sports, and I do not believe they [illegible] as much as men folks believe. Attend a hockey game, [illegible] [illegible] mostly as the players bounce hockey [illegible] [illegible] At football games, boxing matches and [illegible] the gals seem to get their share of fun.

[illegible] when a [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] when a Casey, Robert, Louis or [illegible] [illegible] a crashing wallop.

[illegible] from the battling [illegible] of the Spanish Civil war show [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in the line of machetes. Those of you who have studied history know that in the various revolutions [illegible] the women have often been among the leaders.

Princess Baba [illegible] more courage to laugh at precedent and [illegible] a wife. The Princess also opposed the wishes of the Rajah.

A girl who has that kind of courage is not going to get hysterical even if [illegible] Art Grennon happens to be rough with her husband. I would rather wager that the Princess will give her handsome husband [illegible] of [illegible] and insist that he hand his opponent a [illegible] at the ringside on Thursday night.

Bowser Bids $250,000 For Match

By JACK CONWAY

If Mike Jacobs of the Twentieth Century Club accepts Paul Bowser's offer of $250,000 for the winner of the Louis-Schmeling world's championship boxing match to clash with the victor of the Steve Casey-Yvon Robert world championship mat tussle, I am going to back the wrestler to win.

Bowser also offers to make a side bet of $25,000 with Jacobs that the wrestler will come through a winner. Paul can get plenty of partners who would gladly take a part of his $25,000 wager.

The $250,000 offer is the wager of the Louis-Schmeling [illegible]. The [illegible] a one. A battle between the champion boxer and the champion wrestler would easily draw $1,000,000. Maybe more.

I asked Steve Casey how he would battle the Louis-Schmeling victor.

"I would make a dive for the boxer's legs," said Steve. "Once I got the boxer off his feet, I could beat him easily.

"I would use a hammerlock to pin the boxer's right arm, and the show would be over quickly."

"What would you do if the fighter came charging at you?" I queried.

Steve Casey

"I would keep both hands out straight on a level with my shoulders, and it would be impossible for the boxer to hit me," replied Steve. "When the boxer got in close, I'd grab him, and drop him to the canvas."

With the prospect of representing wrestling in the mixed contest Casey and Robert have displayed added fire in their training sessions, and should be at their best when they enter the ring at the Garden on Thursday night.

MUNGO AMBIDEXTROUS

During Brooklyn's batting practice, Van Lingle Mungo works out at first base with a left handed glove. And he has a pretty good port side whip at that . . . But for the fact that the Giants and Yanks were out of town and the suspicion that the Dodgers could beat the Bees, Leland Stanford McPhail would never have placed his O. K. on playing yesterday . . . Apparently, the Giant and Yankee fans are still wondering if the Dodgers are still in the National League, for none of them was recognized pushing his dough through the wickets . . . In Brooklyn, they must pair the opposing pitchers numerically. On Sunday, Lou Fette, No. 16, opposed Van Lingle Mungo, No. 16, and yesterday, Danny Macfayden, No. 14, was pitted against Freddie Fitzsimmons, No. 14 . . . After striking out in the 2d inning, Lippy Leo Durocher walked back to his bench and threw his bat at Mr. McPhail's new water cooler, which was in two sections after the contest . . . Bobby Jones, of grand slam fame, hobnobbed with the Bees in New York. He was stopping at the same hotel. Freddie Corcoran and Jones are working on a golfing event, which, if it materializes—and how can it miss with them behind it, will be a classic . . . "Gandy" Rosen, the Dodger center fielder, wears a blue, instead of a white cap in the field at Ebbets . . . GRIMES.

Roslindale In Home Debut With Tribunes

Eddie Conway's Roslindale Town club will [illegible] to have a home opener [illegible] being billed at Hyde [illegible] against the [illegible] of the Tribune loop, the Hyde [illegible] [illegible] the feature game of the Twin League card.

Last week the Tribunes were rained out twice on their home [illegible] and so the fans out by Roslindale have had to wait until the second week of the going to see their favorites in action. However, in three games away, the Townies have won two from the Holy Name and Agnews, while losing a [illegible] to the Civics at Brighton.

Back on home terrain should see Jerry Pinkham, ace of the Roslindale boys, start [illegible] against John Grimley for the Newsmen.

Pinkham [illegible] the Holy Name only three hours in his lone start, while Grimley beat the Civics twice within three days.

Mel Keough, [illegible] of Southie, [illegible] up to the Mass Knitting [illegible] in the east loop, will travel to Marcella street to encounter the Maddens.

Mass Knitting, an early season favorite to [illegible] this year's fling, meet the Wessex for the second time [illegible] this time at Roberts playground Dorchester.

The [illegible] Sox carried far too many [illegible] for the Wilson neophytes last night intown, and should have little trouble repeating [illegible] Ambrose winner of its last two games after dropping the opener, go to the South Boston stadium to meet the St. Augustines, while Dan Casey's nine, dropping the last two games on the road, will be [illegible] to get back home at Garvey Field playing the Agnew club.

New Deal for Brookline High Football

Brookline high school today was headed for a football renaissance, if past performances mean anything, with the tendering of the appointment as its head coach to Harry Downes, one of the greatest centers ever developed at Boston College.

Downes, now coaching at Quincy high school, was named head football coach and teacher of mathematics at Brookline high, and Jack Prior, former Harvard star, currently Mt. Hermon school's gridiron mentor, was appointed his aide by the Brookline school committee.

The coaching record compiled by Downes after he left Boston College, where his outstanding play won him numerous mentions on All-America elevens, has been one of regeneration of decadent football spirit and production of outstanding competitive elevens.

HARRY DOWNES

After a brief stay as line coach at B. C. in Joe McKenney's regime, Downes went to Reading high school, where sports, especially football, were at a low ebb. In his two years there the elevens compiled their best records in a decade.

Returning to B. C. in 1935 as aide to "Dinny" McNamara, he was forced to step in at mid-season and take complete charge when a chronic ailment brought the head coach's resignation. He remained the next year as a line coach in Gil Dobie's first year and then went to Quincy.

After three poor seasons, Quincy was regenerated under Downes, gaining four victories, two ties and three losses. Prospects for the coming season are bright but Downes will resign after the baseball season to accept the Brookline offer.

Coast Kid Will Hit, Jim Insists

in the last two games of our recent series with the Senators.

There's no need to worry about Cronin. He's always in there, whether in the field or at bat. He never gives in.

In my opinion "Pinky" Higgins is the best third baseman in the game today. The only reason he isn't so recognized is because he goes about his work so smoothly.

Fans would be raving over him if he acted like a Billy Werber, always bouncing around and making easy plays look hard.

Just think back on last week's games and visualize the fine stops and throws he made one after the other.

Higgins has had a poor start at bat. Much of that is due to a sprained thumb he got in the St. Louis series.

"Pinky" got a big kick out of the game Bob Feller pitched for the Indians against us and one or two others.

"What a dumb lot some of these pitchers are," he chuckled. "Here they have me when I can't even swing a bat, and they walk me all day long."

He got two bases on balls on Sunday, two more on Monday in that Cleveland series.

That thumb is well again. You'll see a different hitter from now on.

(In tomorrow's Boston Evening American, Jimmy Foxx will continue his fascinating series.)

Autograph Addicts Halt Yanks' Game

BUTLER, Pa., May 17 (AP)—Boys and girls seeking autographs broke up the exhibition game between the New York Yankees and their farm hands in Butler in the seventh inning here.

Joe DiMaggio, Lou Gehrig, Lefty Gomez and Bill Dickey were the center of attraction for more than 2000 children.

The Yanks got six home runs, including three by Rookie Joe Gordon and one by DiMaggio.

Diz Anxious To Face Giants

NEW YORK, May 17 (INS)—Unless Manager Charlie Grimm of the Chicago Cubs changes his mind all of a sudden, Dizzy Dean won't hurl a baseball before June 1.

Dean has asked that he be allowed to pitch here Wednesday against the Giants, and he probably will warm up today or tomorrow, but he won't go out to the mound in competition for another two weeks, according to present plans.

If he pitches even in batting practice it will be his first real activity since he pulled a muscle two weeks ago and was ordered by the Cubs' physician to rest entirely for 15 days or so and not enter a game for a month.

The big right-hander arrived here last night with the Cubs and expressed eagerness to get back on the mound, especially at this time when the Cubs need all the pitching they can get, but Grimm revealed that he preferred to give that $250,000 arm plenty of time in which to recover. They depend on Dizzy to do what he can.

Mays, Cummings In Speed Duel

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 17 (INS)—Rex Mays of Glendale, Cal., and Bill Cummings of Indianapolis today were making ready for a final settlement of their auto speed duel.

Each won a heat in a special match race Sunday and rain halted the final and decisive heat. So both agreed that the one making the fastest qualifying time in the trials Saturday for the Memorial Day 500-mile race would be declared victor and receive the $1000 side bet posted.

HELEN WILLS DUE FOR FALL

Tony Lazzeri Is Now Growing Gun Shy

NEW YORK, May 17 (AP)—Joe Vosmik of the Red Sox is engaged in working out a three-year contract with three clubs—he Indians, Browns and Red Sox . . . while European tennis writers are breaking their arms writing about the excellence of the play of Mrs. Helen Wills Moody abroad, George Hudson, noted tennis coach of Berkeley, Calif., comes right out in meeting and predicts Helen will lose to Senorita Anita Lizana of Chile if they meet in the finals at Wimbledon.

Tony Lazzeri of the Cubs, usually one of the most obliging of the baseballers, has done a right-about face . . . he tells the photographers to take al lthe pictures they want, but no questions . . . one reporter asked: "What have you against us?" . . . Tony replied: "I know you are all my friends, but I know already what you're going to ask." . . . Your correspondent did a bit of sleuthing and found Tony was a bit gun shy of those inquiries about his future status with the Cubs . . . Nobody blames him, at that.

Louis Soresi, who was one of Primo Canera's managers, expects to do a bit of promoting in Rome and Milan this summer and is combing Broadway for talent . . . Art Winch, one of Barney Ross' managers, has gone on an orange juice diet and has shed more than 10 pounds in less than four days . . . Will Haridge, president of the American League, says Bob Feller may be a good pitcher some day . . . Haw!

Jimmy Grippo, the fight manager, is one of the best sleight of hand performers in the country . . . When his boys are not going so hot, Jimmy often has saved the show and sent the customers home in a good humor by making those cards do their stuff.

Pacific coast writers are trying to make up their minds whether the Coast League pitching has improved or if the breed of home run hitters in the league has weakened . . . Anyway, the tossers have all the better of the argument so far.

Note to Alex Schulsky, Bridgeport, Ct.: McLarnin knocked out Sid Terris in one round in 1928 . . . Are we seeing things or are the Red Sox really on top of the American League? . . . Joe Gould, now doing London resplendent in long tailed coat, striped breeches, spats and even a monocle, will sail for the states in time to see Louis and Schmeling do their stuff . . . Schmeling won an argument with Mike Jacobs and will train at Speculator, N. Y. . . . Louis goes to nearby Pompton Lakes . . . Barney Ross looks great, but dispatches from Pompton Lakes tell the same story about Armstrong . . . So what?

Wilson Says Deep End Best Bet at Downs

Blue Armor Dave's Choice In 1st Race

By DAVE WILSON

"Selections for Fast Track"
Best Bet—Deep End, 5th Race

SUFFOLK DOWNS, May 17—Deep End, third to Be Blue and Battle Jack in last Saturday's Commonwealth Handicap, returns to the wars beautifully spotted in the Wagon Wheels Purse, six furlongs feature here tomorrow.

FIRST RACE

Blue Armor, Golden Fate, High Image

BLUE ARMOR figures to put forth a vastly improved try over his seasonal debut, in which he was barely beaten by Doris B. and Blue Donna. GOLDEN FATE was cut down soon after the start of his last race, and had to be pulled up. HIGH IMAGE is dropping weight.

SECOND RACE

Elylee, Irene's Bob, Chance Queen

ELYLEE, third to Night Raven and Aureate in most recent race, is a natural preference over less-capable rivals encountered in the second. IRENE'S BOB had to be much the best to win his last race, and rates dangerously despite moving up some. CHANCE QUEEN figures next best.

THIRD RACE

French Bread, Meamute, Bright Sox

FRENCH BREAD won her most recent race very convincingly, and must be favored to repeat. MEAMUTE merits a big figure although she finished a very distant third in her Jamaica final. BRIGHT SOX is dropping down again.

FOURTH RACE

Happy Knot, Highpool, R. Pinchot

HAPPY KNOT, carefully reconditioned since her successful Florida campaign, comes up to the fourth fit and ready to win. HIGHPOOL, third to Porcellus in most recent race, shapes up only slightly better than R. PINCHOT.

FIFTH RACE

Deep End, Posterity, Jane Vito

DEEP END will have POSTERITY to drub. The latter performed as if a trifle shy on racing condition when recently beaten. JANE VITO comes strongly recommended.

SIXTH RACE

Wulfstan, Founder, Peaceful.

WULFSTAN meets little more than he drubbed in his most recent start and the additional yardage should hold no terrors for him. FOUNDER, second to Patchpocket over a muddy track the other day, figures to again head PEACEFUL.

SEVENTH RACE

Stump, Kenyon C., Manrico

STUMP was beaten only the narrowest of margins by Officiate in his last race. The Cole colorbearer picks up no additional weight and meets practically the same horses that finished behind him in the above-mentioned race. KENYON C. displayed marked improvement in his most recent start.

EIGHTH RACE

Al Carlys, Garden Message, Doctor C. N.

AL CARLYS won going away by five lengths in a six-furlong sprint the other day, and the increased yardage of this number should prove right down his alley. GARDEN MESSAGE, second to Poop Deck in most recent start, may outstay DOCTOR C. N.

GEORGE, I NEED JUST A HALF-POUND OF CHEESE TO MAKE A FEW MORE APPETIZERS. WILL YOU RUN DOWN TO THE CORNER DELICATESSEN AND GET IT? THAT'S ALL. I WANT NOW, JUST A HALF-POUND OF CHEESE!

Swifty Contest Winner Enriched $100

Only Two Days Left to Rename Brer Rabbit

Only two more days before the close of the Swifty contest. Tomorrow night at midnight is deadline.

All mail received by the Boston Evening American's Swifty Contest Editor postmarked after that time will be rejected.

If you can think of a more appropriate name for Wonderland Park's mechanical rabbit, write it down now. Accompany it with a 100-word essay on "Why I Love a Dog" and mail it immediately to the contest editor.

Someone . . . it may be a youngster or an adult . . . will enjoy the distinction of renaming the biggest performer of them all at Wonderland, Revere.

For the winner there is $100.00 in cash. Second, third, and fourth prizes will be handsome young thoroughbred Boston bull puppies.

The first prize will go to the best name submitted. The essays will be considered only in the event that more than one selects the name accepted.

Russell Murray, managing director of the Bay State Greyhound Association, which opens the racing season at Revere on May 31, will head the board of judges who examine and scrutinize carefully all the mail sent to the contest editor.

Remember! Only today and tomorrow left. There'll be a new name for Swifty. Get your letter in before closing time.

There's $100 in cash and three beautiful puppy pets waiting for the winners.

Ex-College King On Arena Card

Phil Wade, winner of the National Intercollegiate wrestling contest of 1933 will make his first professional appearance in this city at the Arena tomorrow night when he meets Frank Eident in a special bout.

Wade is a graduate of Penn State College and has been wrestling professionally for more than a year. So far he has not been defeated.

The feature bout will bring together Harry Finklestein, Jewish heavyweight sensation, against Pat Schaffer of California.

One of the high spots of the card will be a contest between Adolph Shultz, Germany, and Pasha, the Turk.

Northrop to Run Only Mile Saturday

Alex Northrop, Harvard's captain who has been doubling in the half mile and mile all Spring, will confine himself to the mile event in the Heptagonal Games at Princeton, Saturday.

The Crimson leader will also run only a mile in the I. C. A. A. A. championships at Randall's Island two weeks from Saturday.

Huskies Meet Eagles Tomorrow

Northeastern's club will attempt to prove that its earlier victories over Boston College and Tufts were no accidents when they meet their local rivals again this week.

Tomorrow the Huskies drop over to Alumni field and will rely on Gus Rock to give the Eagles a real tussle. With Frank Meehan on the hill, the Huskies were able to shut out B. C., 3 to 0.

Schooling Races Daily At Wonderland

There will be many changes at Wonderland Park this coming season which opens two weeks from tonight . . . the "eye in the sky" has been installed, and there will be a projection screen in the infield where pictures of the finish will be flashed . . . the parking spaces have been fenced in . . . trees have been planted, and two huge fountains are being built in the infield.

Unofficial schooling races are taking place every day . . . the official timings start next Monday . . . particular attention will be paid to the "pups" as there are going to be many new dogs at Wonderland this year.

Art Wilson, one of the top owner-trainers who has Court Jester and many other standouts, is coming up with a new dog called Tall Talk, which they say will succeed the Jester as champion of dogdom . . . Art, incidentally, has shifted his quarters from Winchester to Saugus in order to be nearer the track.

Anybody watching the crowds pouring into Wonderland every day would think greyhound racing has become an afternoon sport and that racing was underway . . . investigation shows they are all job seekers and are all on the trail of Russ Murray . . . from last reports Russ was heading for an osteopath to take the kinks out of neck from agreeing with or refusing the individuals that hounded him . . . there are about 300 jobs available and the applicants number close to 7000.

Bill Fineran, Wonderland's new racing secretary, is making a great hit with the dogmen already at Revere . . . his condition book will give the small owners a long needed break.

Coffey Beaten In Worcester

WORCESTER, May 17 (AP)—Mike Coffey of Dublin, Ireland, amateur champion of middleweight boxers on the Emerald Isle, met his first defeat in nine American bouts, losing a decision to Sam Shumway of Webster, in the semifinal round of an international tournament.

MIKE COFFEY

Shumway knocked Coffey down on one knee in the first round with a right to the jaw. The Irish champion leaped up without a count and forced the fighting in the second round.

Shumway scored with left and right early in the third round and staggered Coffey to his heels with a straight right to the nose. The decision was unanimous.

Charles Evenden, lanky Irish soldier from Kildare, won the 147 pound class by outpointing Ed Dufresne of Worcester in three rounds and stopping Mike DeNapoli of Roslindale, Mass., in less than a round.

Tom Penny, red-headed heavyweight from Dublin, was defeated in his class finale by Herb Coonan of Rochdale, Mass., after a slow bout. In his semifinal bout Penny outscored Lou McKoul of Worcester, former New England junior champion.

Four For Dave

Wilson Picks 'em at Any Track

"Win with Wilson" is a slogan true at any track. With Suffolk quiet yesterday, Dave graded the Belmont races and came up with four winners.

In the first race, Jack Horner, his top choice, romped home at 9 to 2; Immortal II. an odds on 3 to 5 choice, won the second; Lady Nicotine took the third at a 7 to 5 payoff, and Sea Voyage captured the fifth, paying 6 to 5.

Deny Ross-Armstrong Fight Proving Flop

'You're So Small, You'd Fit Right in There'

UMPIRE MAGERKURTH CASEY STENGEL GEORGE KELLY

CASEY ON SOAPBOX—Bees' manager lashes into Umpire George Magerkurth for allowing Umpire Charles Moran to overrule him on Vince DiMaggio's double in first inning. Magerkurth had ruled it fair. Fletcher was on first at the time, so the ruling cost Bees a run. Stengel, after argument, announced game was being played under protest. But it mattered not, for the same DiMaggio drove home the winning run in the seventh with a timely single. That's Coach George Kelly giving Casey his moral support. Casey and George were teammates on McGraw's pennant winning Giants 15 years ago. International News Photograph Service

Jacobs Hits Story 'Bout Is Off'

By DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, May 17 (INS)—Take it emphatically from Promoter Mike Jacobs, who seemed to be suffering a touch of distemper, the Barney Ross-Henry Armstrong welterweight championship fight not only is on for May 26, but you couldn't take it off with plastic surgery.

He made this declaration today in answer to reports that, because of the proximity of the Seabiscuit-War Admiral horse race and the early momentum of the Schmeling-Louis sale, he might take a postponement on the welterweight fight.

The announcement from Armstrong's camp that the title contender is down so fine he would lay off for four or five days also added some fire to the report that the match would be postponed. The Armstrong people, however, say the Californian is ready for the test, but that he does not wish to lose too much weight in training.

ARMSTRONG TOO LIGHT

If Armstrong worked every day, says Eddie Mead, he would be down around 130 pounds for the bout instead of at 135 to 137 pounds.

Mike Jacobs wishes to add that he's never made a habit forming practice of postponing the sum of $225,000.

"That's what the Ross gate will do," he announced. "I'd have my head examined if I didn't take that kind of money while it's here waiting for me."

What's that? Somebody said the advance sale wasn't running what you'd call a temperature?

"I wish," said he, "I could put my hands on 100 seats in the first 18 rows right now. People are calling up and wiring me from Philadelphia, Chicago, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Washington and everywhere, trying to get choice ringside seats. That's your test of an advance sale, the ringside stuff. There's no 'advance' on cheap seats nowadays.

"That's an over-the-counter sale on the day of the fight. The Galento-Mann sale was $800 last Thursday. On Friday night, it was $25,000."

I also was assured that Promoter Jacobs expects to sell 8000 ringside seats for Ross and Armstrong, at an approximate total of $130,000 in this respect alone.
